

APPAREL, ACCESSORIES LEAD RETAIL TRADE IN WEEK'S SALE INCREASE

NEW YORK, Sept. 22.—(AP)—With seasonal influences making for expansion, the past week's retail trade was estimated to be 14 percent larger than in the corresponding period last year, the Dun & Bradstreet weekly review said today.

"Sales increases were featured," the review reported, "by a heavy demand for apparel and accessories, lines which had been hit hardest by the record heat wave in some sections in the previous week."

"Reports from wholesale markets indicated that although the forward buying wave had passed its peak order volume remained substantially above last year. Most lines continued to have the appearance of a seller's market."

HEAVY INCREASE IN PINE BUSINESS

PORTLAND, Ore., Sept. 22.—(AP)—Reports from 113 mills showed last week's new business of 109,390,000 board feet of lumber was more than 20,000,000 feet higher than the previous week, the Western Pine association said today.

Activity during the earlier period was less primarily because of the labor shutdown.

Shipments totaling 76,682,000 feet and production of 85,284,000 feet were substantially higher than the previous week. Orders, shipments and production were substantially in advance of the corresponding week last year.

To date, orders were 12 percent and shipments 11 percent above 1938.

DEAN OF STATE AIDES IS KILLED IN TRAFFIC

SALEM, Sept. 22.—(AP)—George Allen Nye, 78, who worked longer for the state of Oregon than any other person, was killed this afternoon when struck by a truck driven by Joe Sweigert of Salem.

Nye, a mail messenger for the state capitol, retired last March 31, after serving the state 33 years.

He was walking across the street and ran into the side of Sweigert's truck, police said. Sweigert told police that Nye, whose eyesight was poor, apparently became confused.

Why is the president so excited about selling war munitions to the belligerents? Is he relying upon this to bring back prosperity? Or is he catering to big business? I would like to write more but space forbids.

Peace?

To the Editor:

Considering the reams written about peace, why haven't we attained a state of peace? To the analytical mind most of our peace is the lip service variety.

Until the mass mind understands the atomic structure of matter, and applies the principle of the differential calculus to our social and economic structure, we will continue with our fratricidal economic struggle.

If war is first an invisible electric impulse, or ideation, in the mind of man, and were never allowed to manifest in the material, peace would then be the natural sequence.

Since peace is also a state of mind, peace should be easily attainable, if we were really peace minded.

Undoubtedly the lip service pacifists predominate. In their conversation they are discussing the beatitudes of peace, and the horrors of war, when someone suddenly remarks, we can sell material and supplies to the belligerent nations, through the back door, so to speak.

Their vibratory rate immediately changes to inward gloating, as they picture in their mind's eye the fat profits; said profits will have most of the stench of putrid human flesh and blood removed, via the back door, as it were.

But Alas! They forget the law. The mills of the Gods grind slowly, while the hand of Karma turns the wheel!

This should be indisputable proof they are lip service pacifists to the 10th degree. Their motto should read "My profit right or wrong; my profit!"

Referring to the Good Book, we read: "If any man profess to love God and hates his brother, he is a liar!"

Peace must predominate in the minds of men before it can manifest in the physical, which brings us to Hermes Law, "As above, so below."

Ships Collide Off Washington Coast

SEATTLE, Sept. 22.—(AP)—Coast guard division headquarters said the steamships Lochmoran and Pacific Grove collided off Swiftable light, northern Washington coast, today, and the cutter Redwing had been dispatched from Port Angeles.

The Merchants Exchange identified both as British ships; the Lochmoran en route from Puget Sound to Portland, Ore., and the Pacific Grove from San Francisco to Seattle.

Mr. Lindbergh's Speech
To the Editor:

I was glad to read your comments on Colonel Lindbergh's speech. They coincide with my views.

Lindbergh, from the time he became famous for his splendid deed which, coming at the time it did, held promise that he might become one of America's foremost leaders, but what do we find?

He has become the world's man of mystery, and since the awful crime (committed by a German, by the way) which drew to Mr. Lindbergh the sympathy of every right-thinking American, Mr. Lindbergh has hidden behind a mask of secrecy, and distrust of the American people which has made a great many distrust him. (To say the least.)

Mr. Lindbergh did not think America was a safe place to live in so he went to Europe, where he made an enemy of Russia, a friend of Germany, and gave England and France the jitters, when it seemed that war was certain, he returned and in a most mysterious manner surrounded by secrecy, made a most impassioned speech urging America to keep out of the war, and accused his former friends of greed, selfishness and about everything else that could be said publicly, and asks us to consider, and look behind every piece of propaganda, every speech, and every picture.

Let us begin with him. Could it be possible that his speech is a piece of expert propaganda? Could his statement about German air power have had any special significance? Is he interested in keeping us out of war with Germany? Nobody knows but Mr. Lindbergh and he won't tell.

I do not want this country to go to war with any nation, but we are free, white and twenty-one, and do not need any oceans to hide behind and should be capable of handling any situation with pride and honor, neither do we have to take any "sass" from any nation, but if we decide not to meddle, then let us "for heavens sake," refrain from offering any other nations any advice as to what they should do.
