Latest Fashions Viewed at Annual Style Show Event

"The most successful luncheon and show ever," seemed to be the consensus of the two hundred guests who attended the annual fashion parade yesterday in the Presbyterian church.

Luncheon was served on tables colorfully decorated with marigolds and a golden color scheme was carried out in the large recreational room.

Attractive models showed the exciting fashions for this year on a long runway aided with large ferns donated by the Medford Greenhouse. A variety of clothes, portraying the backward as well as the forward trend, delighted the many feminine spectators. Among the numerous outstanding ensembles were a cherry red velvet, bustle dress to be worn for afternoon and dinner; a brocaded moire dress for formal wear; an imported tweed coat with a smart wolf collar, a custom tailored suit showing the newest of color combinations, black with stop red; a Lasky ermine coat with new shag shoulder and drapery; a grape wine outfit with two-piece boucle coat with removable jacket of beaver.

Tweeds seem to head the list in sports fabrics and a lovely model showed a three-piece suit of imported tweed. Another beautiful garment was a fairway green with becoming red fox trim combined to make a costume suit. Going from the ultra sophisticated to the girlish fashions were two youngsters showing during Shirley Temple print dresses.

It was definitely proved at the style show that whether Milady likes it or not she is going to wear snoods, heavy jewelry, perki millinery and bustles in a mild form.

And what is in fashion being without the latest in coiffures being shown. Leonard's Beauty college with Mary Bellotti and Dorothy Sieman displayed tea time and dance time hair-dos and Elsie Oliver from Earl's Beauty salon was pretty in a semi-formal affair, which was a neppy medium between an up and down swing. Other models and the local stores they represented are as follows:

Penney's, Alene Fowler and Leda Weltzel; Burelson's, Jane Met; Montgomery Ward, Juanita Rector and Mary Gettsch; Jacque Lenox, Hope Wood and Belle Thompson; Arista Fur Shop, Francine Stapleton and Irene Pease; Madeline O' Day, Barbara Drury and Madelon Sunderman; Mann's, Betty Elson and Bobby Bieden, D'Ann Beck and Kathryn McAllister; M. M. Store, Deliene Thompson and Alice Crow; Adrienne's, Patsy Smith Barr and Mary Elizabeth Shreve.

Mrs. M. E. Sands acted as a very capable fashion commentator and three vocal selections presented by George Maddox accompanied by Mrs. Maddox were enjoyed by the large crowd.

Sunny Sisters Circle of the church were hostesses for the annual event.

Many Attend D.A.R. Luncheon Meet For State Regent

Sixty members of Crater Lake chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution attended the luncheon meeting Saturday in the Hotel Medford to honor Mrs. Gilbert E. Holt, state regent, of Pendleton and Mrs. Howard P. Arnest, first vice-regent of Portland.

Other notable Daughters present were Mrs. Ethelyn Evans of Washington, D. C., and Mrs. B. G. Harding, past state regent, both members of the local chapter.

Luncheon was served in the small dining room. Tables were attractively decorated in a profusion of autumn flowers in shades of pink and mauve. Mrs. Sherman L. Divine, regent of Crater Lake chapter, presided.

During the afternoon's program, Mrs. Evans presented a summary of the national treasurer's report. She pointed out that while such community had expended annually thousands of dollars on projects, there remained a stable reserve fund. She told the group that the Daughters should be proud of their large part not only in patriotic endeavors, but also in relieving distress and unemployment in the country.

Mrs. Arnest, first vice-regent of the D. A. R., and state president of the Children of the American Revolution, gave a report of the national convention of the latter organization. She said, while urging that patriotic training of youth be redoubled, "We must begin very early to train our youth in the principles of democracy if we are to offset that of the totalitarian government which is taught not only abroad but in our own country."

Mrs. Holt spoke of recent additions and donations made to the beautiful buildings owned by the D. A. R. in Washington. She also spoke briefly on the major national committees. It was pointed out that in the work of Americanism the D. A. R. stands among the first, and Mrs. Holt lauded the local chapter for its outstanding accomplishments in this field.

Mrs. G. Q. D'Albini is chairman of the Americanism class here. She reported that a project of forty would apply for citizenship in the next naturalization court to be held here. Mrs. Holt also mentioned the splendid work being done by the D. A. R. for underprivileged classes, of worthy loans made and the encouragement given to the American Indians to perpetuate their legends and crafts. The preservation and marking of historic spots and the national defense and patriotic education programs were also mentioned. In conclusion Mrs. Holt urged that the United States stay out of the European war and quoted from an article by Martin Dies.

Style Trends and Care Of Lingerie Told by Miss Ladd

"You're going to be a lady and love it," says Miss Roberta Ladd, traveling washability specialist from the Lux laboratories. "Clothes this season have a picture-book quality that makes you feel completely charming and act with grace.

"Quaint words you haven't heard in years come to life with new freshness—bustle, polonaise and camisole. The new fashions start with your figure, of course.

"First, you must carve inches off your waist—fortunately not with torturous whalebones as your grandmother did. The new all-in-one foundations are remarkably plastic though firm about whitening your waist and rounding your hips. Even girdles are out inches above your waistline to confine unruly diaphragms and are held in place with tiny bones cleverly placed for comfort. You'll look like a lovely flower of lukewarm water for a few minutes. If the water becomes thick and cloudy with dye, don't attempt to wash the fabric. If, however, there is only a slight discoloration, you can wash it safely if you follow the Lux method.

"After choosing a new dress, select appropriate stockings as carefully as you do harmonizing shoes and hat. Does the color need stockings with a warm, yellow cast or is a pinky beige more flattering? What weight is right? You wouldn't wear an evening dress to business, so you don't want an evening stocking with a tweed skirt. But whatever kind you buy, remember, you can cut down these tedious and annoying runs by Luxing stockings after every wearing! It saves their elasticity!

"Lingerie has been prettied up, also, for its place in the fashion picture. Lace-makers are busier than they've been in years turning out handsome lingerie laces—alencor, binche, val, and the quaint embroideries so fashionable 50 years ago. Whole bodices of laces are often made of lace—then an enormous deep frill whipped on lavishly at the hem. Wide lace shoulder straps are flattering under sheer blouses. But in spite of all this lushness, lace-trimmed slips wear remarkably well with proper care.

"To be truly feminine, your dress must look appealingly fresh. Perhaps that's one of the reasons colors are having the play of their lives. Plaids and stripes look gay and fresh, too. After the most 'washable' summer in years, more than ever, women are demanding washables all year around. Manufacturers have developed scores of silks, rayons, and rayon and cotton mixtures that can be washed with complete success.

"Here's the rule I follow: Test first. If it's safe in water, it's safe in Lux. In spite of my long experience with fabrics, I don't trust my eye... I always test. If you are buying piece goods, ask the clerk for a sample. Test it by squeezing it in a tumbler

It doesn't look a day younger but GOODNESS!

WHEN YOU LOOK at an automobile of, say, 1926, you lean back and laugh. Four cylinder vibration! The big wheels and little tires! Storm curtains! Two-wheel brakes! My, what a difference from the cars of today.

But when you look at gasoline, it doesn't appear much younger than it was a decade or two ago. Actually it's so much peppier, so much more on its toes that experts can't give you an exact measurement of the advance.

Only since the establishment of octane ratings six or seven years ago have comparisons been possible. Nobody thought to save any real vintage stuff for the statisticians. Since half-way back to 1926, the octane rating of ordinary gasoline has progressed from 60 to a national average of 70.2, in step with the demand for higher octane fuels brought about by increased compression in engines.

Yet the price of gasoline has steadily declined while the quality of the product has been zooming like an arrow that in no other major field has the public so extensively been given more for its money.

This, we believe, is one reason why the United States, with 6 per cent of the world's population, now has 70 per cent of the world's motor cars—why everybody rides, why everybody enjoys the outdoors, why America is the land of the care-free.
