Bing Crosby's School Days Picture on Sunday Bill

Oldsters and youngsters will thrill as Bing and these talented kiddies sing "School Days, School Days" and a dozen other old favorites. It's Bing Crosby in the best of all his roles, the title role of "The Star Maker," glorious song-studded picture suggested by the life of that song-writing, star-making showman, Gus Edwards. In the picture, which comes to the Craterian theatre for a three-day run starting Sunday, Bing makes stars out of talented kiddies, sings all of Gus' tunes, and four new hits.

Rialto's Stars

Weird spiritualistic seances, mystic rita of professional magicians, grim murders under seemingly supernatural circumstances combine in a tale of reality and unreality in "Miracles For Sale," starring Robert Young and Florence Rice and playing today and tomorrow only at the new Rialto theatre. Directed by the man who made "Dracula" and the immortal Lon Chaney horror masterpieces, "Miracles For Sale" also features Henry Hull, Frank Craven, Lee Bowman and Astrid Allwyn.

"Torchy Plays With Dynamite," the first of the new Torchy Blane series starring Jane Wyman as the new Torchy Blane, plays at the sec-

PALACE PARTY. The banquet of the Maharajah of Ranchipur in honor of the visiting Lord and Lady Esketh is a reunion for Edwina Esketh and Tom Ransome, who rekindle an old love. Present at the affair are (left to right) Mr. Bannerjee, suavely Western on the surface but Indian in heart and soul; Lord Esketh, ruthless industrial baron; the Maharajah and Maharani; Raschid Ali Khan (William Royle), swaggering Chief of Police; Lady Esketh and Tom Ransome.

LOVE SONG. Major Saffi translates the beautiful poetry of an ancient Rajput love song for Edwina. An amorous woman of the world, she is beginning to believe that perhaps at last she has found the great love of her life. Saffi finds her beautiful but is wary of her worldliness.

FLOOD! Fed by the still-pouring rains, the terrible flood waters continue to rise, until even the ruined refuge of Tom and Edwina is threatened. They take to a flimsy boat to escape certain doom.

PLAGUE! To add to the already monstrous task confronting the relief workers, typhoid and cholera rage in the once-proud city. Torn between her desire to live selfishly and her love for Saffi, Edwina goes to him, works night and day at his side. But his realization of his love for her comes too late!
