

SETTLEMENT BY CONFERENCE IS FUEHRER'S IDEA

Organization of the internal economic systems of individual states—along with organization of markets and currency regulation—to revive international trade; establishment of an "unconditionally guaranteed peace" and a sense of security on the part of individual nations by sanctioning Europe as remade and by reducing armaments.

Poland Dead Issue.
"Why should this war in the west be forgotten?" he asked. "For the restoration of the Poland of the Versailles treaty will never rise again. This is guaranteed by two of the largest states in the world (Russia and Germany)."

He thus ended his speech: "As Fuehrer of the German people and chancellor of the reich I can only thank God at this moment that He has so wonderfully blessed us in our hard struggle for what is our right, and beg Him that we and all other nations may find the right way, so that not only the German people but all Europe may once more be granted the blessing of peace."

As to Germany's currently close relations with Russia, he acknowledged that in the past he had declared that the U. S. S. R. was "organized on principles which differ from those held in Germany."

"Since it became clear that (Joseph) Stalin saw nothing in these Russian-Soviet principles which should prevent him from cultivating friendly relations with states of different political creeds, national socialist Germany sees no reason why it should adopt another criterion."

The German-Russian pact, he said, was not only "of peace, but also of a sense of satisfactory cooperation for both states."

He put great stress on what he declared had been his efforts to "rid our relation with France of all trace of ill-will and to render them tolerable for both nations."

In an address which some Nazis called the greatest speech for peace since the World War, Hitler coupled his suggestions for a general attempt to solve Europe's problems with a declaration that it could not be done "while cannons are thundering and mobilized armies are bringing pressure to bear upon it."

"If . . . these problems must be solved sooner or later," he said, "then it would be more sensible to tackle their solution before millions of men are first uselessly sent to death and billions in riches are destroyed."

Increasing Sacrifices
"A continuation of the present state of affairs in the west is unthinkable. Each day will soon demand increasing sacrifices . . ."

He introduced the subject of a peace conference by saying that the "most important condition" for a "real revival of economic life in and outside of Europe is the establishment of unconditionally guaranteed peace and of a sense of security on the part of individual nations."

"This security," he added, "will not only be rendered possible by a final sanctioning of the European status, but above all by a reduction of armaments to a reasonable and economically tolerable level."

"The essential part of this necessary sense of security, however, is a clear definition of the legitimate use and application of certain modern armaments which can at any given moment have such devastating effect on the pulsating life of every nation, and hence create a permanent sense of insecurity . . ."

"I believe, however, that a sense of national security will not return to Europe until clear and binding international agreements have provided a comprehensive definition of the legitimate and illegitimate use of armaments. . . . It must surely be possible to emulate the Red Cross and draw up some universally valid international regulation. It is only when this is achieved that peace can rest particularly in our densely populated continent—peace which, uncontaminated by suspicion or fear, will provide the only possible condition for real economic prosperity.

Nations Must Agree
"To achieve this great end the leading nations of this continent will one day have to come together in order to draw up, accept and guarantee a statute on a comprehensive basis which will insure for them all a sense of security, of calm, in short of peace."

"Such conferences could not possibly be held without the most thorough preparation, that is, without exact elucidation of every point at issue. It is equally important that such a conference which is to determine the fate of this continent for many years to come could carry on its deliberations while cannons are thundering or mobilized armies are bringing pressure to bear upon it."

THIRD ADD 2 col led SETTLEMENT.
Referring then to the "unthinkable" state of affairs in the west, he added:

"From both sides (eventually) destruction will strike deeper, deeper and whatever cannot be reached by long distance guns will be destroyed from the air. . . . This battle of destruction won't be confined to the land. No, it will reach far over the sea."

"Today there are no longer any islands. And the national wealth of Europe will be scattered in form of shells, and the vigor of every nation will be sapped on the battlefields."

"One day, however, there will again be a frontier between Germany and France, but instead of flourishing towns there will be ruins and endless graveyards."

Sneer For Churchill
"Mr. Churchill (British first lord of the admiralty) and his companions may interpret these opinions of mine as weakness or cowardice if they like. I need not occupy myself with what they think; I make these statements simply because it goes without saying that I wish to spare my own people this suffering."

"If, however, the opinions of Messrs. Churchill and followers shall prevail, this statement will have been my last. Then we shall fight. Neither force of arms nor lapse of time will conquer Germany. There never will be another November, 1918, in German history. It is infantile to hope for the disintegration of our people."

"Mr. Churchill may be convinced that Great Britain will win. I do not doubt for a single moment that Germany will be victorious. Destiny will decide who is right. One thing only is certain. In the course of world history there have never been two victors, but very often only two losers. This seems to me to have been the case in the last war. May those peoples and their leaders who are of the same mind now make their reply. And let those who consider war to be a better solution reject by outstretched hand."

"I'll NEVER GIVE UP The Correct Grind"

"Thank goodness, I can use The Correct Grind successfully in any kind of coffee-maker by merely following directions. And I'll never let anyone tell me to re-grind The Correct Grind because I'd give up flavor, aroma, and freshness."

IMPORTANT: Carefully observe timing for each method. Measure 2 level tablespoons of coffee to each cup of water. Vary water slightly for each strength desired. Keep coffee-maker clean.

Drip Method: 6 to 8 minutes preferred. If less than 2-3 capacity filter, each strength desired. Keep coffee-maker clean.

GLASS VACUUM MARRS: Put upper portion in after water boils. Coffee and water should be in contact 3 to 7 minutes.

PERCOLATOR: Start with cold or hot water. "Perco" 7 to 10 minutes after steady pumping starts.

COFFEEPOT: Bring coffee and water to boiling. Stir well. Add small amount of cold water and let stand 3 minutes to settle grounds.

STEEPING: Pour boiling water on coffee. Stir well. Stir again in 3 minutes. Steep for a total of 10 to 15 minutes.
