Usually BOOSTERS COME FIRST —and last!

If YOU'D been reading our mail lately you might have come across a letter from a stockholder suggesting that, in the highly competitive oil business, every stockholder should be a booster for this Company and its products. It was a very nice fan letter.

Yet our experience is that a person is much more likely to become a stockholder because he's a booster than he is to become a booster because he's a stockholder. A tremendous number of our some 70,000 stockholders live in the West . . . were customers first . . . still are.

They bought into this Company because they liked the cut of our job. They liked our goods, our prices, our way of doing business. And they liked them enough to invest their savings with us. This betokens a public confidence which is without doubt our greatest intangible asset. When some people like us that much, every body likes us some.

It pleases us enormously that this should be the case. But it also keeps us on our toes. There's an old saying that the customer is always right. When the customer is also the boss —well, he's very right indeed. It means we do right by the public—or else!

Sentence will be passed tomorrow by Justice of the Peace W. R. Coleman upon Wanda Colvig, waitress, and Ralph Smith, cook, found guilty last Friday of illegal sale of liquor.
