Lew Ayres in War Picture

Lew Ayres takes cover in a shell-damaged cemetery in one of the many thrilling scenes from Erich Maria Remarque's "All Quiet on the Western Front," which comes to the New Rialto theatre for a three day run starting tomorrow. The picture is the uncut, unaltered version of the famous film with the scenes that were cut out for peace-time showing put back in.

The outcome of the dramatic story of "The Old Maid" is one of the year's grandest bits of cinema acting. The budget committee will be held this week. Next meeting will be Wednesday, October 15, according to present plans, when the date of the public hearing will be set, and dates of publication of the budget determined. All main items of the budget have been settled, but two or three details remain to be straightened out. The budget total will be approximately the same as last year. The budget committee is composed of Henry Enders of Ashland, who has been on four previous committees. W. H. Young, Eagle Point, and Leonard B. Carpenter, Medford.

Bette Davis Tops Cast of Dramatic Craterian Picture

A drama that will linger long in the memory of all who see it is "The Old Maid" which opened a three day run yesterday at the Craterian theatre with Bette Davis and Miriam Hopkins in the starring roles. A deeply stirring story of the curious bond of hatred that binds two women together, it is matchlessly performed by the two stars and a brilliant supporting cast including George Brent, Jane Bryan, Donald Crisp, Louise Fazenda and James Stephenson.

It is the tale of two girl cousins of a proud old Philadelphia family, and its period ranges from the beginning of the Civil War in 1861 up into the 1880's. Across that stretch of years the two live under the same roof — hating each other, never achieving reciprocal sympathy or understanding until both are well into middle age, and the young daughter of one is leaving the ancient homestead for matrimony.

Miriam Hopkins is a widow, the old maid in Bette Davis. She has never yet had the sweet young girl of the house as her daughter, born of a glorious farewell night with her lover, Brent, just before he goes off to war, there to be killed in action. Jane Bryan plays the daughter, grown up, and the performance she turns in as the family mediator is one that will win the outstanding acting laurels.
