MARITIME UNION SEEN DOMINATED BY COMMUNISTS

countries, the witness said ships could be sabotaged to such an extent the navy would be powerless.

Earlier, Dies asked justice department help in subpoenaing George Mink, described by a committee witness as a Soviet secret police agent in this country.

William McCuiston, self-styled former communist and former leader of the CIO's National Maritime union, told the committee recently Mink could give orders to Earl Browder, general secretary of the communist party in the United States, and he was the "power behind the scenes" in maritime work on the west coast.

On West Coast McCuiston, who was taken into police custody Tuesday in connection with a New Orleans slaying, said he believed Mink was now on the west coast.

Dies directed Rhea Whitely, committee counsel, to confer with the justice department on prospects of getting a subpoena for Mink.

McCuiston resumed the stand today and committee counsel asked him about a number of persons described as figures in the labor movement.

McCuiston testified he had frequently discussed communist affairs with Harry Bridges, west coast maritime leader, and Bridges had on two occasions urged him to return to the communist party after he had been expelled from it for refusal to follow all of its program.

Opposition Seen Before testimony started today, Dies predicted the administration would "do everything"

Stars In Rialto Coast Guard Hit

Randolph Scott, Frances Dee and Ralph Bellamy are starred with Walter Connolly in "Coast Guard," roaring drama of America's "navy of mercy," which opens a three-day run today at the New Rialto theater. Scott is seen as the pilot of a "mercy plane" and Bellamy is a coast guard lieutenant. Rivals in romance, the two cheerfully risk their lives that others it could block his request for a two-year extension of the committee inquiry. He added that, on a record-vote, not 10 members would vote against it. His resolution contained no request for additional funds, but the committee, nearing the end of its $125,000 appropriation, has announced already more money will be sought. Unless the extension is granted the committee must make its report by next January 3.

James Cagney With Priscilla Lane In "Roaring Twenties"

Time has been doing a back-flip and the result is "The Roaring Twenties," which opened yesterday at the Craterian theater. It is a dramatic and compelling story of an era that is still strong in the minds of most of us—those fabulous years that mark the span from the end of the World war to the great market crash of 1929, powerfully told in the medium which is best equipped to tell it—the screen.

No one but James Cagney could quite so ably portray the lad who returns thankfully from the war, eager to go back to his old job as a mechanic, only to become swiftly disillusioned in a world that was forgotten the debt it owes to the soldiers who fought for it. His rise from taxi-driver to bootlegger to big shot gangster is made believable and understandable by Cagney's work. Priscilla Lane, as the eager young schoolgirl who does her bit writing "pal" letters to the soldiers and who grows up to be a nightclub singer through Cagney's influence, again proves herself to be one of the finest young dramatic actresses on the screen today. Humphrey Bogart and Jeffrey Lynn, as Cagney's war buddies who become, respectively, a fellow gangster and a crusading attorney, are splendid in their roles. Gladys George, cast as a nightclub hostess of the Texas Guinan type, does an exceptionally fine portrayal. Paul Kelly as a rival gangster, and Frank McHugh, as Cagney's easy-going taxi-driver friend who is the tragic victim of a gang war, both do standout jobs in minor but important roles.
