

William Holden, New Star, With Brilliant Cast In Craterian Picture

BARBARA STANWYCK, ADOLPHE MENJOU IN SUNDAY MOVIE DISH

With a record of critical acclaim rarely achieved by any motion picture, "Golden Boy" comes to the Craterian theater today for a three-day engagement with Barbara Stanwyck, Adolphe Menjou and the sensational newcomer, William Holden, in the starring roles.

"Golden Boy" is the story of a youth with the sensitive soul of a great musician and the mauling fists of a champion prize-fighter. Tired of working toward artistic triumphs in some nebulous future, the boy abandons his art to win for himself quick success as a prize-ring killer. "Golden Boy" is the thrilling story of that decision; but, more importantly, it is the portrayal of the tremendous conflict which rages when the youth attempts to force both himself and his family to believe that his decision is the right one.

William Holden, in the title role, is the 21-year-old colossus who won the part over 3,000 other candidates and his characterization of Joe Bonaparte is said to augur a sure success in his screen future.

Barbara Stanwyck is said to give the most absorbing dramatic performance of her career. As Lorna Moon, the disillusioned young woman who finds romance in the adoration of the "Golden Boy," Miss Stanwyck's characterization is one sure to find favor.

As the caustic, harassed manager of the "Boy" and suitor of Lorna Moon, Adolphe Menjou adds another triumph to his already long list.

Others include Joseph Calleia, Lee J. Cobb, Sam Levene, Ed Brophy, Frank Jenks and Beatrice Blinn.

Richard Greene in Dramatic Show Now On Rialto's Screen

A daringly significant story of modern life that's out of the beaten path, with Richard Greene on the threshold of his greatest opportunity in his first starring role and a great supporting cast—such as "Here I Am a Stranger," the picturization of the popular McCall magazine story by Gordon Hillman. Richard Dix, Brenda Joyce (the star discovery of "The Rains Came"), Roland Young and Gladys George head a cast of important stars.

"Here I Am a Stranger" heads the double bill opening for today and tomorrow only at the New Rialto theater.

With absorbing realism, "Here I Am a Stranger" tells the story of a boy who reaches the threshold of manhood to find himself suddenly a stranger in the world he has grown up into. Bewildered by the conflict between his superficial world of wealth and show and a new world of things that are new and real, he is torn and hurt by life, until he meets a girl as new to love as he is himself.

This is the role portrayed by Richard Greene, a major opporunity given the young star as Hollywood's answer to 250,000 fan letters received by Green's studio requesting him to star in a picture.

Despite the depth of its theme and the intensity of its drama, "Here I Am a Stranger" is interlarded with sparkling comedy.

Leo Carrillo's newest comedy hit, "The Girl and the Gambler," plays as the added feature on today's double bill. The story of El Rayo, Mexico's most notorious bandit, known for his adoration of the ladies and for his genius for larceny, "The Girl and the Gambler" also stars Steffi Duna and Tim Holt.

Drama of Prison Life Coming Tuesday

The tense drama of the attempt of an innocent prison victim to lead a new life, and of his re-sentencing, second escape and revenge after the real criminal tricks him is daringly told in "Blackmail," which brings Edward G. Robinson to the New Rialto theater for a three-day run starting Tuesday.

Ruth Hussey and Gene Lockhart have supporting roles with Bobs Watson and Guinn Williams. Robinson is seen as John Ingram, a former ship's mate who builds up a business as a dynamiter of oil well fires, but who develops a callous brutality when sent back to prison, and makes revenge his sole aim in life.

ANOTHER BOOSTER FOR RETER PEARS

Medford pears have won another enthusiastic booster, it is shown by a letter received by the Reter Fruit company from Mrs. Marie Grant, 5643 North Magnolia avenue, Chicago. The letter follows:

"Quite recently I came upon a russet pear in the market and because of its beautiful coloring, decided it would fit in perfectly with my autumn table decorations. Naturally I decided to learn of its flavor and was so entranced with its meaty quality and tanginess of taste that now the average pear holds no attraction for me. Only today did I see a wrapper with your name; hence I grasp the opportunity to obtain some of your health hints and also the booklet for children.

"This pear is most satisfying for eating to slave off that afternoon hunger and is excellent in salads. I hope it will be on the Chicago market for some time to come."
