Wall St. Report

New York, Nov. 9.—(AP)—A late selling wave swept over the stock market today and toppled prices fractions to more than 2 points.

The drive started after an early attempt at a rally petered out. A sale of 14,500 shares of the recently buoyant Curtiss-Wright common around 2 p. m. brought a flood of offerings in other so-called war stocks and touched off numerous stop-loss orders in vulnerable issues.

Transfers were in the neighborhood of 1,000,000 shares. Bonds and commodities were mixed.

Brokers could point to no outstanding piece of news to account for the tumble.
