Billy Hulen says:

I. Pickem Says Tigers, Oregon Troy and Iowa

With a 10 for 12 record last week-end swelling his confidence almost to the point where he looks upon all grid clashes as mere child's play, I. Pickem faces this week's football combats certain that nothing can prevent him from continuing his sensational prognosticating.

Most picksters would consider the week's pigskin slate especially tough, what with a bunch of traditional, do-or-die contests listed, but for I. Pickem they are just some more football games—easy to tag if you know how.

The following dozen tilts are guaranteed to end the way I. Pickem says, or just the opposite. With both barrels blazing, here they are:

Medford-Ashland. Miracles do happen and the impossible has been known to occur on the football field, but if Skeet O'Connell's Grizzlies upset the Black Tornado I. Pickem'll take Belgium against Germany and give odds. It could be a fairly tough ball game for the Medfords, what with five of regs on the bench and Ashland undoubtedly hopped awful high, but it will more likely be about 35 to 0 for the Bowermanites.

Klamath Falls-Bend. The game is at Bend and the Lava Bears are pointing for the Pelicans, but Pickem doesn't see how Eldon Cone's club can beat the Klamaths. Klamath Falls by a 20 to 7 margin.

Oregon-Oregon State. What a game! Two great lines bucking heads with no advantage and the Webfoots scoring twice through the other for a 13 to 0 victory.

Washington - California. Up goes the coin, down it comes and stands on edge. A tie, friends, a 7 to 7 deadlock.

Washington State-Idaho. This will be a minor upset, with Idaho licking the Cougars, 7 to 6.

Montana-Gonzaga. After flipping the coin again, it looks like a Montana victory by 12 to 7.

Stanford-U.S.C. Poor Indians. The score can be anything, but Pickem doesn't believe El Trojan will tally over six touchdowns to Stanford's naught.

Santa Clara-Michigan State. Those Broncos are stampeding now, and Michigan State can't stop 'em. 20 to 13, Santa Clara.

Notre Dame-Iowa. Here is the gigantic form reversal, I. Pickem's weekly upset. Nile Kinnick will strike through the air and his Iowa mates will whip the Irish, 13 to 7.

Pittsburgh - Carnegie Tech. Pitt, suffering a bad season, will lose to Carnegie by 6 to 0.

Cornell-Colgate. The big red Cornell machine figures to roll all over Colgate. Cornell, 21 to 0.

Army-Harvard. Neither club has shown much, to date, so out of the hat Pickem picks Harvard, 13 to 12.

Medford and Ashland Renew Grid Rivalry Here Tomorrow

FLU PUTS FIVE TIGER REGULARS OUT OF ACTION

Tornado Favorite Despite Sick List—First Daytime Game Starts at 2 P. M.

Medford's powerful Black Tornado, undefeated in seven starts this season and definitely shooting for the mythical state championship.

Ashland high's Grizzlies, yet to taste the sweet fruits of victory in six games and wanting only one conquest to save the current campaign from becoming one of the most disastrous in history.

With this 1939 background, southern Oregon's two most ancient grid rivals take the field in Medford high's stadium tomorrow afternoon, Armistice Day, in a resumption of their football series which dates back to the turn of the century.

Kickoff for the struggle, highlight of the American Legion Armistice Day celebration here, is at 2 o'clock sharp.

Although the Tigers, on paper, are heavy favorites to whip the Grizzlies and tie Klamath Falls for the Southern Oregon conference championship, an outbreak of colds, injuries and the flu has riddled Medford's squad to such an extent that the Bill Bowerman team will go into action minus five regulars.

Newland Out
Bob Newland, triple-threat left halfback, ran a temperature of 103 yesterday and unless he makes an amazingly rapid recovery he won't play, leaving the post open to Cato Wray, sophomore.

Billy Piche, right half, is definitely out with the flu. Ray Johnson, second-in-line right-half also has the flu and won't start. The position will be filled by Ike Orr, sophomore.

With Don Moyer and Fred Gunnette, right ends, both on the ailing list with bad colds, Norbert Miksche will get the starting call at that spot. Bill Clute, giant tackle, broke a small bone in his left hand in the Eugene game and will be on the bench unless it is absolutely necessary for him to get in. Bill Wall, sophomore, will be at Clute's right tackle berth. Harry Thurman is definitely out with the flu, and his center position will be filled by Jim Wallis.

Rush Has Appendicitis
Hard luck also struck the Ashland squad this week when Vernon Rush, regular fullback, suffered an attack of appendicitis Wednesday. He has been receiving the icepack treatment and Coach Skeet O'Connell said it was doubtful if he would play.

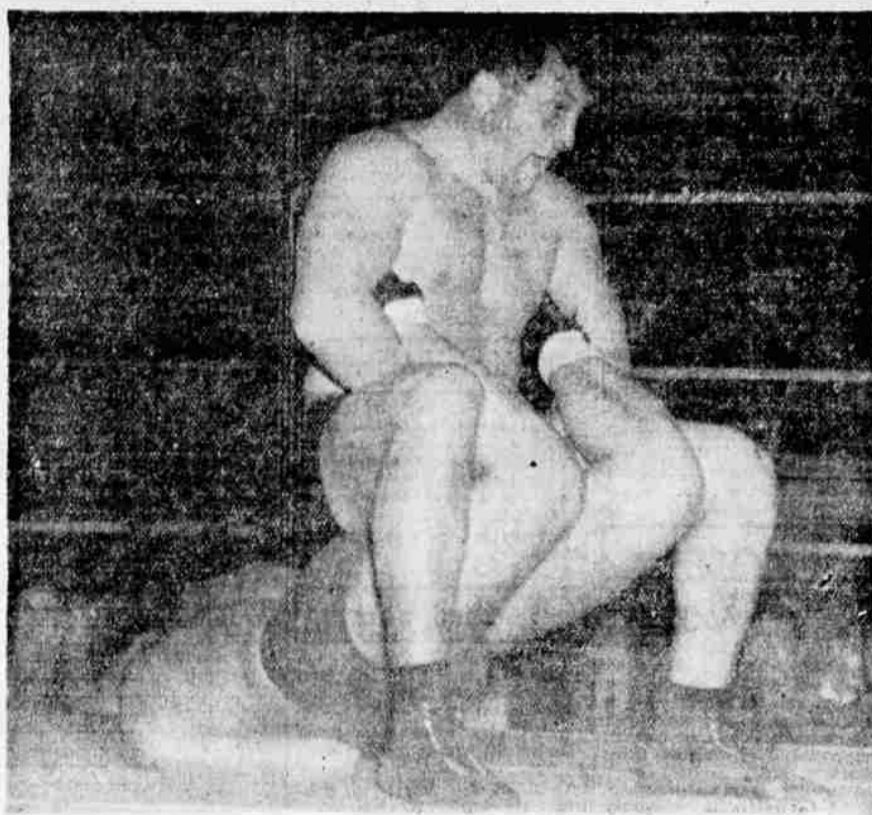

The remainder of the Ashland team is in good physical and mental condition, O'Connell stated, although colds were in evidence.

Not in a decade has Ashland managed to beat the Black Tornado, and only once in 10 years have the Grizzlies been able to tie the Tigers, 6 to 6 in 1938. In 1929, Ashland won two games from Medford. Last season the Tigers won, 27 to 7.

Following are the 1939 records of the two teams:

Medford	26	Weed	19
Medford	31	Corvallis	14
Medford	38	Grants P.	0
Medford	0	K. Falls	0
Medford	24	Eureka	12
Medford	34	Bend	13
Medford	20	Eugene	6
Ashland	173		64
Ashland	13	Lakeview	13
Ashland	6	Yreka	6
Ashland	0	Grants P.	12
Ashland	0	K. Falls	39
Ashland	6	Dunsmuir	6
Totals	25		76

PETTIGROVE GETS SECOND GRAPPLE CRACK AT PILUSO

The match which "stole the show" on last Monday night's wrestling card in the armory—Ernie Piluso, the Portland flash, versus Duke Pettigrove, southern badman—goes on again on next Monday eve's ladies night grapple offering, and although it is billed as the opening event it again will probably overshadow the two other bouts in the matter of raw, blood-and-thunder chills and thrills.

Many fans claim they have never seen such a knock-down-and-drag-out as that staged last Monday between Piluso and Pettigrove. For rip-roaring action it probably topped anything held here in many years, and nothing should stop the boys from coming up with another hair-raiser.

WEEK'S LUMBER TRADE SHOWS SLIGHT DECLINE

Portland, Ore., Nov. 10.—(P)—Reports from 116 mills showed last week's new business of 55,339,000 board feet of lumber was 9 per cent less than the previous week, the Western Pine association said today.

Shipments were 84,160,000 feet, a slight gain, and production 79,234,000 feet, a slight decline. Orders were considerably below the corresponding week a year ago, but both shipments and production were substantially higher.

FIVE BIG TILTS ON COAST GRIDS THIS WEEK-END

Oregon-Beaver 'Civil War' Tops List—Washington-Bear Game Rated Tossup

San Francisco, Nov. 10.—(P)—There's no armistice on far western football battlefronts this week-end, although the five top pigskin attractions likely will have no effect on the Pacific coast conference race and the scramble for a Rose Bowl bid.

The northwest might provide one of the best contests of the day as Oregon State and the University of Oregon, bitter rivals and each with three wins and one loss on the conference slate, clash at Eugene, Ore.

Trojans Favored
U. S. C. hooks up at Los Angeles tomorrow with a Stanford team that hasn't won a game yet this season. The Trojans will be topheavy favorites.

U.C.L.A., tied with Southern California for the conference lead at three wins, no losses and one tie, takes a day off this time. Another traditional battle will send Washington's Huskies against California at Berkeley. Each team has lost three, and the outcome is about a toss-up.

Idaho meets Washington State at Pullman in a game that has no bearing on conference standings.

Broncs vs. Michigan State
The intersectional flavor will be added by Santa Clara's contest with Michigan State in San Francisco.

Other top games tomorrow pit University of Utah against the University of Hawaii at Salt Lake City; Montana against Gonzaga at Missoula, and University of Portland against powerful little Fresno State college at Fresno.

St. Mary's and the University of San Francisco will clash in San Francisco Sunday.

INDOOR SKI MEET WON BY NORWEGIAN JUMPER

Seattle, Nov. 10.—(P)—Olav Ulland, Norwegian ace who has been wintering in the Pacific northwest the past two seasons, opened his 1939-40 season by taking top honors last night as the far west's first major indoor ski meet got under way at the civic ice arena. The meet will continue today and tomorrow.

Ulland made leaps of 56 and 52 feet for 219.5 points on a man-made crunched ice hill which started high outdoors and sloped down through a window to the takeoff inside the arena. The 64-foot runway led to a 123-foot jumping hill.

Oregon Picked to Defeat Beavers; Irish Over Iowa

By Herb Barker
NEW YORK, Nov. 10.—(P)—Being the seventh chapter of the weekly football guessing contest: Texas A. and M. Southern Methodist Twin powerhouses of the southwest collide and probably will decide a conference championship. S. M. U. has revealed a sturdy defense, but the Mustangs seem to lack Texas A. and M.'s all-round power and class. The nod goes to the Aggies.

JUNIORS PLAY AT GRANTS PASS TONIGHT

Medford junior high's fine football team swings into action for the last time this year tonight, traveling to Grants Pass to clash with the Cavemen freshmen at 8 o'clock.

The local juniors, champions of the southern Oregon high conference, will line up with Ricks and Monteith at the ends, Smith and Anderson at the tackles, Fleser and Keene at the guards, Casebeer at center, Dipple at quarter, Barker and Isaacs at the halfbacks and Jones at full.

Iowa-Notre Dame: With Nile Kinnick pitching, this might be the spot for the well-known upset, but this corner, for one, hasn't nerve enough to call it. Notre Dame.

Cornell-Colgate: There are some who believe the Cornells are bound to get knocked off somewhere along the line. Voicing disagreement, the vote goes to Cornell.

Princeton-Dartmouth: If there is anything seriously wrong with unbeaten Dartmouth, Princeton will uncover it. Until then, Dartmouth.

Southern California-Stanford: The Trojans look much too good. Southern California.

Harvard-Army: Both well beaten, but Army rates the nod.

Pitt-Carnegie Tech: If they would call this game after the first half, we'd take Pitt. As it is, Carnegie Tech.

Northwestern-Purdue: The Boiler-makers are showing signs of wear, while Northwestern is coming along steadily and gets the call.

Illinois-Wisconsin: If the Illini can beat Michigan, they ought to beat Wisconsin. There is a joker in that argument almost as often as not, but we'll take Illinois.

Georgia Tech-Kentucky: Three guesses ought to be allowed on this. Kentucky is unbeaten and outplayed Alabama. Tech has looked strong all year. The coin is the only possible answer and reads: Tech.

Tennessee-Citadel: Who brought that up? Tennessee, and think of a number.

California-Washington: A slight edge to California.

Santa Clara-Michigan State: State seems outclassed. Santa Clara.

Oregon-Oregon State: Sheer guessing. Oregon.

Washington State-Idaho: State.
