Rogue River Ladies of the Civic Improvement club met at the home of Mrs. Ray Moore Nov. 10. A very good attendance was out. Several of the ladies put on a short play for the program. Refreshments were served by the hostess.

Mr. and Mrs. Richard Scott and daughter Barbara of Marshfield were week-end visitors of Mr. Scott's mother, Mrs. James Whipple, and husband, Sunday they were dinner guests of Mrs. Scott's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Dengler, and Mrs. Scott's sister, Mrs. Nat Hart and family. Other guests were Mr. and Mrs. A. A. Mathis of Grants Pass.

Mrs. Reed Carter entertained Wednesday for a few friends and neighbors in honor of her birthday and some other whose birthdays occur in November. Honor guests for Al Piche Hardware and Sporting Goods, emphasized the need for aggressive and intelligently planned publicity campaigns as a force toward general business improvement throughout the nation.

In commenting on advertising, Mr. Parker said: "Advertisers are not only making money, but they are earning it. They are earning it in various ways, one of which is laziness. The human race is lazy, just plain, plumb lazy. Why do the inhabitants of temperate climates outstrip in progress and worth while accomplishments the natives of the tropics? Because cold and hunger are golden spurs. Because of the two evils man chooses to root hog rather than die.

"The Pilgrim Fathers knew that if they didn't keep almighty busy during the summer, they never would get through the next winter. The reason the United States was developed so rapidly was that it was 14 below zero in the New England States and the Indians were good shots in all states.

"Up to the last half of the century the thing which kept civilization on an upward spiral was a kick in the pants and a sock on the jaw. Man is chemically constituted that he won't hustle unless he is starved, tons hawked, clawed, shot at, snowed on, drowned out, growled at, and generally roughened by his environment. All this up to 50 years ago.

"Then came the new psychology. Fear, which started this country going, as the great motive power, has been replaced by desire. In arousing men's desire, advertising has kept the economic machinery in motion. It has taken the place, as an impetus to activity, of the crude drive and urge that lashed the early settlers.

"Man must have a motive or he will inevitably lie down and take things easy. There are only two motives compelling enough to stir him to big things--Fear and desire. Nature originally provided the first motive, and she wrote the first chapter of our history in letters of frost and blood. Advertising took up the load and with an equally brilliant, but less cruel pen it is writing the pages of a wonderful chapter to be continued long after you and I are gone. Advertisers are making the money and they are earning it, for advertising has become one of the greatest sources of the nation's greatness.

"You might think that certain industries need not advertise. The movies, for example, are constantly in the public eye. The radio industry already has your ear, and the telephone industry is on every tongue. Nevertheless these industries have the wisdom and vision to advertise persistently.

"Persistence is the very heart beat of successful advertising. Statistics show the astounding turnover of customers. Advertisers realize that new customers are coming into the market every day. A message may be an old story to you but every twenty-four hours there is a fresh group of people who never heard of you before. This is one reason why advertising should be continuous. Another reason is that an advertising message

CHARLES PARKER EMPHASIZES NEED OF ADVERTISING

Charles E. Parker, the west coast representative for the advertising firm of Hastings Sales, Inc., of Kansas City offered some interesting observations on advertising, based on many years of experience in this profession. Mr. Parker, who is now conducting a campaign in this city

By Frank Jenkins. AN "authoritative source" in Berlin says Germany "has decided to fight until British supremacy in the world has been destroyed." He (perhaps one should say "it" when referring to so intangible a thing as an authoritative source) adds: "Germany will have no peace terms to offer until such a victory has been won."

IN THIS war of words, that is intended as an answer to the British declaration that the war will go on until Hitler and Hitlerism have been destroyed.

FRANZ von Papen, German ambassador to Turkey (who was outwitted by the British diplomats at Ankara), chips in: "Germany is fighting to avoid a repetition of the tragedy of Versailles and to build a better Europe."

More window dressing - "words," as Octavus Roy Cohen puts it, "but they don't mean nuffin'." The peace of Versailles was a crime, goodness knows, but it was no worse than the deal France got when she was helpless before a victorious Germany after the Franco-Prussian war in the 1870's.

One side is as bad as the other in Europe--has been since Alexander started the world conquest fad.

THE truth is that Europe's big shots LOVE WAR, and even the common people who do the fighting and the dying, lacking other excitement, aren't as set against it as they might be.

Europe is old and blasé and weary. It has none of the thrills of a new, rich country such as America, where anything can happen--and frequently does.

In Europe, war HELPS TO BREAK THE MONOTONY.

HEAD hunters of the South Seas love head hunting. Our own red Indians loved scalping. Plenty of people love to get drunk and make disgusting spectacles of themselves.

EUROPE LOVES WAR. (Our own national vice is the sentimental idea that we have a messianic mission to make angels of all the world's devils. If we are unable to get rid of this idea, it will get us into IMMENSE trouble.)
