The Washington absent list has remained about the same through the week.

Rural Schools Hit

County School Superintendent C. R. Bowman said that, while there were numerous cases of flu in the rural schools, none had been forced to shut its doors. Forest Creek was the hardest hit, apparently, but the school is open after being threatened with closure earlier in the week, he stated.

In Josephine county, the epidemic has closed three rural schools and forced cancellation of the Grants Pass-Roseburg high football game, slated for tonight. One high school girl in Grants Pass was found to have diphtheria and two boys are feared to have contracted the disease.

NEWARK PAPER IS FORCED TO QUIT

Newark, N. J., Nov. 17.—(AP)—S. I. Newhouse, publisher of the Newark Ledger, a morning newspaper, announced today purchase of the name, good-will and circulation lists of the Newark Star-Eagle, an afternoon publication.

Announcement of the suspension of publication tomorrow was made in today's editions of the Star-Eagle by Publisher Paul Block. The Star-Eagle is 108 years old.

Block said "increased production costs due to mounting labor costs and shorter hours, as well as rising newsprint prices and increased taxes, have convinced us that even during times when business shows an improvement, as it does today, it is apparently impossible to make a second evening paper at least break even."

DISPENSERS HOLD TRADE DISCUSSION

Reinhart, coach at George Washington university, was once Oregon's baseball mentor.

HEALTH GROUP IS ASSURED SUCCESS

San Francisco, Cal.—(U.P.)—California's medical profession believes it has successfully met the challenge of "socialized medicine," by voluntarily organizing and offering medical insurance at prices within the reach of almost everyone.

Although the plan is only a few months old, the number of participating physicians and the number of working groups of five or more persons who have accepted the medical insurance services available insure the ultimate success of the project, officials declare.

The service was organized by the California Medical association. Ray Lyman Wilbur, president of Stanford university, was first president. Compulsory insurance bills already had been defeated in the state legislature. The new plan is known as the California Physicians Service.

Already 2,500 California physicians have joined. Eventually 5,000 physicians and surgeons are expected to enroll.
