ICKES LONGS FOR CHANCE TO BUMP TRUCKS WITH TANK

Secretary Enumerates Highway Peeves in Talk to Automobile Association

Washington, Nov. 17.—(P)—Secretary Ickes said today he longed for the time he can take an armored tank down a "truck-infested" highway, "bumping these pests from the road."

Advising Americans to mend their highway manners so as to attract foreign visitors, the interior department chief said in an address prepared for the convention of the American Automobile association:

"We would like Canadians and Latin Americans to visit the United States and we would like even more Americans to visit Canada and vastly more to visit Latin America."

Idiosyncrasies Cited
Then, saying "We should not undertake to induce tourists to come to this country if they are to be disappointed," Ickes cited "a few idiosyncrasies" which might be corrected to make American motor travel more attractive. He said:

"In my judgment a minimum speed law is even more justifiable and necessary than a maximum speed law."

"There are too many hamlets in the United States that affect a bustling metropolitanism by sticking up a traffic light, without which the motorist would hardly know a town existed."

"Some motorists, when they approach such (traffic lane) lines, seem to imagine that they are tight-rope walkers."

Trucks Annoy
"The lord of the highway is the truck driver. I have promised some day to give myself the pleasure of driving down a truck-infested road in the biggest armored tank I can find and bumping these pests from the road."

"But what particularly annoys me on a holiday or weekend trip is to see emerge out of the distance a leviathan that has just had a litter of motor cars that it is transporting from the lying-in factory."

He advocated trucks be barred from main highways on holidays and week-ends, and transporting new automobiles over highways be totally prohibited.

Stuffed Bird to Stuff a Boy

"Oh, gee, mom! Can I have some now?" Tommy's ready for turkey with his favorite stuffing.

Thanksgiving's just around the corner... and, of course, everybody's getting ready for the feast. Youngsters and grownups agree that turkey's the bird. But there's a point for you to settle... what shall the stuffing be?

Here are four brand-new recipes... each one kitchen-tested.

Oyster Stuffing
5 cups cracker crumbs 1 pint oysters
1/2 cup melted butter Milk to make
1 teaspoon sage 1 1/2 cups liquid

Combine cracker crumbs, melted butter and sage, tossing thoroughly together. Drain liquor from oysters and add milk to make 1 1/2 cups. Moisten crumb mixture with the liquid, add oysters, and mix together lightly but thoroughly.

Skinner's Frankfurter Stuffing
1 loaf white bread 1/2 teaspoon salt
1 cup diced celery 1/2 teaspoon poultry seasoning
1/2 cup butter

Use day-old, unsliced bread. Crumble bread into fine crumbs, discarding hard crusts (there should be 8 1/2 cups crumbs). Saute celery and diced frankfurters in the butter in a large skillet, for 5 minutes. (If frankfurters other than skinless are used, be sure to remove the casing). Add bread crumbs and stir over low heat until crumbs are coated with butter. Add poultry seasoning and salt. Pack loosely into turkey.

Sausage Stuffing
2 loaves (1 1/2 lb. each) 2 teaspoons salt, white bread or to suit taste
2 lbs. fresh pork 1/2 teaspoon sage
1 cup diced onions

Use day-old sliced bread. Remove crusts and cut bread in cubes. Put sausage in hot skillet, add onions, and stir over heat about 5 minutes, until sausage is cooked. Add salt and sage, and mix thoroughly. Pack lightly into turkey. (A convenient way to buy sausage is in Patties—fresh sausage packed in cellophane-like casings.)

Skinner's Frankfurter and Rice Stuffing
1 lb. (7 or 8 skin) 8 cups cooked rice
less frankfurters (1 lb. uncooked)
1/2 cup butter 1/2 teaspoon salt, or to suit taste
1 cup diced celery 1/2 teaspoon pepper
2 tablespoons chopped onion 1/2 teaspoon sage

Cut frankfurters in halves lengthwise, then cut crosswise in thin slices. Melt butter in skillet, add celery, onions and frankfurters, and cook about 5 minutes, stirring frequently, until celery is moderately soft. Mix with rice, add salt, pepper and sage and mix thoroughly. Pack loosely into turkey.

Harry Young of the Copco home office in Medford gave an interesting lecture on light and lighting and showed a movie in sound and technicolor, entitled, "The Power Behind the Switch."

Appreciation was expressed to Richard D. Gray, superintendent of the Prospect schools, for having arranged an evening's program which proved to be both educational and entertaining.

SCHOOLMASTERS ENTERTAINED AT PROSPECT MEET

Prospect, Nov. 17.—(Sp)—The Jackson County Schoolmasters' club met at Prospect high school Monday evening with 27 members and two guests present.

The local unit of the Parent-Teacher association served dinner at 6:30 in the school cafeteria.

Clem Clarke, superintendent of Butte Falls schools, presided over the meeting and program. Edward Root, music instructor, and three of his students, Dorothy and Herb Sutcliffe and Aileen Sherwood, played two special numbers on their clarinets: Song—Reinecke and prelude—Chopin for clarinet symphony. Elcho Redding, high school student, played two very enjoyable numbers on his accordion.

Ludo Grieve, superintendent of the California Power company in this area, then gave a brief history of the power company and its development in southern Oregon.

SPRAGUE CHAIRMAN OF McNARY BACKERS

Portland, Nov. 17.—(P)—The honorary chairmanship of a statewide committee to promote Senator McNary for the Republican presidential nomination was accepted yesterday by Governor Sprague.

"I have been gratified by the fine response received from all parts of the state with reference to the McNary candidacy," the governor wrote to Kern Cranford, Republican state chairman, in accepting the chairmanship.

Lost Children Safe
Seaside, Ore., Nov. 17.—(P)—Johnny Small, 12, and Jackie Sandy, 14, returned unharmed to their homes yesterday after being lost all night in the Tillamook head district.

SHARE CROPPERS BECOME OWNERS WITH U. S. HELP

Former Tenants Gain Independence in Cooperative Effort — Fear Vanishes

La Forge, Mo.—(U.P.)—There's chicken in every skillet, there are lots of canned food in the cellars and the 100 families of the 6,700-acre cooperative resettlement project here are looking forward to a winter of plenty after the field crops are in.

Within two years this area, once despaired of as productive of nothing but cotton and indigent sharecroppers, has been transformed into a cooperative community of small landowners who are well on their way to a relatively fair degree of prosperity.

The families, taken indiscriminately as they came by the federal farm security administration which loaned them money and supervised construction of the community, have rehabilitated themselves until they are now taxpayers on the same land on which most of them were destitute "croppers" two years ago. Property owners now, they are gradually assuming the roles of substantial citizens.

Excellent Yield
Hans Banach, supervisor of the project, says each family put up about 400 jars of foodstuff during the summer. He says the community's 2,000 acres of cotton will produce a yield of at least 1,500 bales, which will mean a minimum of $300 in cash for each family.

Additional cash will come from the sale of surplus hogs and calves, from farm conservation benefit payments by the government, and dividends from the cooperative store, cotton gin and silt service.

Fear Gone
One reassuring condition that adds to the welfare of the group, Banach says, is the lack of fear that the families will have to move in the spring—a fear that is ever-present with the share cropper.

Banach says the project has encountered considerable opposition from large private landowners who see in the success of the community a threat to the sharecropper system. "But this method is the only solution for the sharecropper problem in the South," he says.

Prunes To Plymouth
Salem, Nov. 17.—(P)—Gov. Charles A. Sprague will send a box of Oregon prunes to the National Thanksgiving Observance Commission, which will hold a Thanksgiving dinner November 30 at Plymouth, Mass., scene of the first Thanksgiving in 1631. The dinner will consist of products from each of the 48 states.

NORTHWEST PLANS TO LURE TRAFFIC DIVERTED BY WAR

Oregon, Washington, British Columbia Join Forces to Cash in On 1940 Travel

Salem.—(U.P.)—Oregon, Washington and British Columbia are joining forces to cash in on the war-diverted European travel next year.

Government figures indicate that half a million persons take ocean trips from the United States but, with the war in Europe interrupting this traffic, the three districts will launch an advertising campaign to bring many of these tourists to the Pacific northwest.

At a meeting in Seattle, attended by Harold Say, director of the travel department of the Oregon state highway commission, and representatives of Washington and British Columbia, preliminary plans for the joint effort were made.

Foresee Good Year
The travel department and other tourist agencies expect next year to be an exceptionally good one for travel.

Should the Golden Gate international exposition reopen next year it would serve as a drawing card to thousands of American and Canadian tourists as it did this year.

Inquiries are still pouring into the office of the travel department in quantities unusually heavy for this late in the season. Many of them ask for information in connection with planning 1940 trips to Oregon. The total number of inquiries received by the department since the first of the year is 78,000.

Travel Holds Up
Late fall tourist traffic, stimulated by fine weather, also has been at a record point for Oregon. Travel to Crater Lake national park, a barometer of tourist traffic for the state, showed a gain in October of this year of more than 32 per cent over the same month a year ago.

By concerted effort the district representatives expect to cut down the individual expenses, and at the same time, work out a better and more complete advertising scheme. Most of the advertising will be directed at travelers in the eastern states.

Swiss "Bombed"
Basel, Switzerland, Nov. 17.—(P)—A German propaganda bomber flew 60 miles into Switzerland today strewn thousands of anti-British pamphlets from Basel to Zug. The pamphlets were printed in French.

Using Up The Apples
(In Apple Butter)
Dinner Menu
Browned Fish Steak
Tartar Sauce
Escalloped Potatoes
Buttered Beets
Bread
Apple Butter with Cider
Steamed Cranberry Pudding
Lemon Sauce
Coffee

Apple Butter
(With Cider)
12 pounds apples
6 quarts cider
2 cups water
10 cups granulated sugar (5 pounds)
1/4 cup cinnamon, ground
1 tablespoon cloves, powdered
1 teaspoon nutmeg
1 teaspoon salt

Wash, quarter and weigh the apples. Do not peel them, but discard all soft places. Add the cider and water and cook, covered, until the mixture is soft. Press through a sieve. Add the rest of the ingredients and boil gently until the butter is thick. It will require about an hour—perhaps more—cooking. Stir frequently with a long-handled wooden spoon.

(It is advisable to use an asbestos mat under the cooking kettle as butters and jams scorch easily.)

Pour the butter into jars and when cool seal with melted paraffin.
Steamed Cranberry Pudding
4 tablespoons fat
2/3 cup granulated sugar
1/4 teaspoon salt
2 1/2 cups flour
3 teaspoons baking powder
1/2 teaspoon nutmeg
2 eggs, beaten (or 4 yolks)
1 1/2 cups chopped cranberries
1 cup cold water

Cream the fat and sugar. Add the rest of the ingredients. Half-fill a greased pudding mold. Cover tightly and let steam for two hours. Serve hot with lemon or any other fruit-flavored sauce.

"Hurry Sis—remember I like SNOW FLAKES, too!"
A treat in themselves, tender SNOW FLAKES also make soups, salads, or creamed dishes taste doubly delicious.
If you're one of those shoppers who think all crackers are alike, do this:
COMPARE THE FRESHNESS: When you open your triple-wrapped, air-tight carton of SNOW FLAKES, notice that fresh-from-the-oven aroma. They're rushed to your grocer from nearby National Biscuit Company ovens. They reach your table with all their freshness sealed in.
COMPARE THE TASTE AND TEXTURE: You can tell SNOW FLAKES by their "finer-ingredient" taste. And you know that delicate, open texture means baking timed to a split second.
In three convenient sizes. Your grocer has them.
SUGGESTION OF THE WEEK: For a nibble at bedtime, try SNOW FLAKE Crackers and a glass of milk or a cup of hot chocolate.
