

DEATH COMES TO DELROY GETCHELL, BELOVED BANKER

apolls where his rise was rapid. He organized the Standard Bank of Minneapolis, and later the People's bank, of which he was vice-president and manager. He was also vice-president of the Merchants bank of St. Cloud, Minn.

Health Forced Change
Later he consolidated his banking interests with others, forming the Northwestern National Bank of Minneapolis which developed into the great Northwest Bancorporation, with branches extending to the Pacific coast, and of which his life-long friend, E. W. Decker, became president.

In 1905, Mr. Getchell, advised by his physician and friend, Dr. G. G. Eitel, to seek a milder climate, began spending part of each winter in Los Angeles. In Pasadena he met Miss Alice McClure, who was spending a vacation there from school in New York, and the resulting romance was culminated by their marriage in 1908.

They decided to establish a home in Pasadena and while enroute there from the east in 1909 Mr. and Mrs. Getchell stopped off in Medford to make an investment and were persuaded to take up their residence here.

Cited For Service
Mr. Getchell was prevailed upon to take over the Farmers and Fruitgrowers bank, assuming the presidency. Earlier successes in banking which saw him, the youngest bank president in Minneapolis, guide two institutions of that city through the panic of 1893-5 when fourteen others closed their doors, were repeated here. Mr. Getchell took great pride in the fact that during the world war, his bank bought more Liberty bonds per capita than any other bank in the United States. For his patriotic efforts in this instance he received a medal from the government.

Always thoughtful of the welfare of his bank patrons and members of his staff, his wise counsel and sympathetic interest were outstanding factors in his business career.

He loved books and was probably one of the best read men of the valley, his preference running to history and Shakespeare. Mr. Getchell achieved a measure of literary distinction, chiefly in poetry, a gift inherited from his mother. He was widely known as the "Banker Poet," a title affectionately bestowed by Arthur Perry, Mail Tribune columnist.

Survivors Live Here
Besides his widow, Mr. Getchell is survived by a son, Bayard M. Getchell, a daughter, Valerie Gloria Getchell, and two grandchildren, Philip Armour and Ruth Diana Getchell, all of whom reside here.

Father William B. Hamilton, of Yreka, Cal., former rector of St. Mark's Episcopal church here, and long-time friend of the deceased, will officiate at funeral services to be held Monday at 2 p. m., at the Getchell residence, 1121 South Oakdale avenue. Friends are invited to attend.

The Elks lodge, of which Mr. Getchell had been a prominent member for many years, will conduct services at the graveside in Siskiyou Memorial park.

Active pallbearers will be W. A. Gates, Fred Erickson, H. S. Deuel, George Porter, Fletcher Fish and George A. Coddling. Honorary pallbearers: Dr. F. G. Thayer, Dr. J. C. Hayes, J. G. Perry, C. E. Gates, T. G. Bradley, W. J. Looker, Arthur Perry, E. C. Ferguson, Reginald Parsons, Lee Watson, Diamond Flynn, Dr. R. E. Green, F. E. Wahl, James Owen, Frank C. Clark, H. N. Butler, Laurence D. Bragg, J. V. Watson, Otto Jeldness and John Denton.

Held For Threat

Klamath Falls, Nov. 18.—(AP)—Claude Frey, accused of writing a letter threatening the lives of Mr. and Mrs. Monroe North of Cave Junction, was held today on a charge of threatening to commit a felony. District Attorney Orth Siemore said.

ST. MARY'S CLOSED ALL COMING WEEK ACCOUNT OF FLU

Because of the current flu epidemic, which has chopped normal enrollment almost in half, St. Mary's academy and high school will not open Monday, and will remain closed for one week or until November 27, it was announced yesterday.

A Sister at St. Mary's explained that about 90 of the 180 students were confined to their homes Friday with the flu or bad colds. She said the school would reopen on November 27 unless a large percentage of the remaining well students came down with the disease.

Superintendent of City Schools E. H. Hedrick spiked rumors that any of the city institutions would close because of the epidemic. He said that the peak of the epidemic apparently was over and that "there has been no thought of closing any of the schools."

Friday, 617 or approximately 25 percent of the public school students were absent, but the number who were ill was slowly but steadily decreasing. Dr. L. D. Inskip, city health officer, termed the epidemic "mild," and stated he didn't expect it to become more widespread.

HIGH SCHOOLS TO UNITE IN CONCERT HERE DECEMBER 8

An unusual music treat will be provided for music lovers here Friday, December 8, when the combined high school bands and choruses of southern Oregon appear in concert in the Holly theater under direction of Charles Lawrence and Walter Welke, both from the music department of the University of Washington.

Mr. Lawrence will conduct the chorus of over 200 voices while Mr. Welke will direct the band in which at least 75 students will participate. Many will remember the expert directing of these two conductors in recent years in Ashland, when they conducted similar groups for the Teachers' Institute.

The schools are already in preparation for the concert. Final rehearsals under direction of the two guest conductors will be held three days in advance of the performance, and a brilliant rendition is expected.

The program will be published in a later issue.

PLAN FOOD MART NEAR PINE CONE

Plans for the construction of a modern, 100 by 120-foot frame and stucco food market slightly behind the present site of the Pine Cone, north Medford resort, were announced yesterday by Marshall O. Bessonette, owner.

To make way for the food market, the Pine Cone will be demolished and rebuilt just to the north of the grocery establishment, Bessonette stated.

The foundation for the new food market has been poured and actual erection of the building will start immediately. Bessonette stated, with completion expected about February 1. The building has been leased for a period of 10 years to D. H. McCargar of Grants Pass and associates, who will operate the market. When completed the market will have one of the largest grocery stocks in southern Oregon and will be strictly modern in every respect, Bessonette said.

Demolition of the present Pine Cone will begin about January 1 with the new structure scheduled to be open and ready for business about four months later, the owner explained. The new Pine Cone, Bessonette said, will be of modernistic design, with a spacious dining room and a large bar. It will be slightly smaller than the present building and the management will cater to dinners and dinner parties, Bessonette disclosed. It will feature drive-in service.
