Bette Davis and Errol Flynn in Drama

The most distinguished film production of many seasons, "The Private Lives of Elizabeth and Essex," will be the next feature attraction at the Craterian theater, starting a three-day run Sunday. Co-starring Bette Davis and Errol Flynn, and filmed in natural technicolor, the picture comes from the studio that gave the screen "Robin Hood," "Valley of the Giants" and other great technical hits. The film tells the little-told story of England's virgin queen and Robert of Essex, a constantly engrossing and intimate story set against the magnificent pomp and pageantry of the Elizabethan court. Olivia de Havilland heads the supporting cast as Lady Penelope Gray, lead-in-waiting, who secretly loves Essex, and allows herself to be drawn into a plot, which she confesses when too late. Donald Crisp has the role of the witty courtier, Master Francis Bacon. The suave Sir Walter Raleigh is played by Vincent Price. Others include Allan Hale, James Stephenson and Ralph Forbes. The role of Queen Elizabeth in "The Private Lives of Elizabeth and Essex" is heralded as Bette Davis' most ambitious screen portrayal.

Wiesters Here — Mr. and Mrs. Frank Wiesters of Portland visited Mr. and Mrs. Herbert A. Sims here today. Mr. Wiesters is a representative of the J. E. Bunker Bicycle company.

Sings at Rialto

Gene Autry has his best role to date as the singing sheriff in "In Old Monterey," which opens a three-day run tomorrow at the new Rialto theater as the companion action feature with "20,000 Men a Year." Smiley Burnette and June Storey have roles with the popular cowboy. Randolph Scott, Margaret Lindsay and Preston Foster have the starring roles in "20,000 Men a Year," which deals with college youth and their recent opportunity to join America's air forces. Filled to the brim with thrills and action, the new film comes as one of the outstanding air adventures ever to be brought to the screen.
