

Friends Say F. R. Will Run Only if Emergency Arises

By W. B. Ragsdale
Washington, Dec. 6.—(AP)—The seasoned appraisal of some of President Roosevelt's close friends is that he will run again only in the event of a critical international emergency next summer.

They are convinced his personal desire now is not to run; but he has not positively turned his back on the possibility.

Many factors enter into their calculation. Not the least is that they figure Mr. Roosevelt has finished with all of the major phases of the domestic program he had laid out for himself.

He signaled in his message to this congress at the outset of its first session that he had finished with his bigger legislative endeavors, that the principal thing left to do was to machine down the tools of government that had been wrought during the early years of his first two administrations.

His advocates say the president already has written, indubitably, his ideas of government into the nation's laws, that he

APPLE GROWER TELLS HOW HE MAKES MONEY DESPITE LOW PRICES

Wenatchee, Wash., Dec. 6.—(AP)—Money can still be made in apples with the industry just as it is, Edward C. Clarke, Peshastin grower, told the Washington State Horticultural association yesterday.

He said he had made money every year for the last seven years despite lost markets, low prices and increased pests. He said he had "beaten the game" through elimination of the cost of washing his apples and that his packing costs were but 11 cents a box as compared with the average commercial cost of 25 cents.

The demoralized apple industry was the topic of discussion for the first day's session of the 35th annual convention.

PROGRAMS IN SCHOOLS OF CITY AND COUNTY AID HEALTH PROGRAM

Schools of Medford and of Jackson county, at large, are cooperating again this year in the wide spread educational program, carried on by the Jackson County Public Health association in connection with the annual Christmas Seal Sale, Miss Helen Bullis, county chairman, announced today.

Special programs are being given in all Medford schools this week with every department participating in educating students to better protect themselves against tuberculosis.

Next week schools throughout the county will conduct special programs and those in the rural districts will be given an opportunity to buy the Christmas seals. Seals will not be sold by school children this year, but every child will be given a chance to buy them, and every child will participate in the educational program.

Conserves, Relishes Easily Made With Winter Pears

Conserves and relishes easily made, using local winter pears, will interest even the newest bride. In addition to helping out the pear growers who are handicapped with lack of foreign markets due to hostilities in Europe, housewives will find the following recipes are delightful and more than repay the effort involved.

Here in the heart of the pear-producing district, it is really patriotic for local housewives to use pears! Furthermore, attractively wrapped in cellophane and tied with colorful bows, cans and jars of pear butter, pear conserve, pear marmalade—and for that matter any type of canned or preserved pears—make a Christmas gift which is not only highly appreciated by the recipient for its goodness, but for the fact that it is handmade by a friend, thus giving it a personal touch, which is always greatly appreciated.

A recipe leaflet entitled "Tasty Treats" is available at the office of the Pear Bureau, 605 Union street, Seattle, which gives several methods of baking pears in novel and delicious ways, and suggestions for salads.

The following are recipes for preserving of pears either for immediate use, for use later, or for gifts.

Pear Butter.
Peel and core one gallon of fresh pears; put in kettle and add two cups water; boil slowly; when done put through a colander. To every four cups of pulp add two cups of sugar. Place on stove again and cook slowly until dark and very thick. Stir occasionally. A few minutes before removing add juice of one lemon and cinnamon or other spices to taste, and seal while hot.

Pear and Apple Conserve.
1 qt. diced pears
1 qt. diced tart apples
2 lemons, juice and grated rind
2 cups seedless raisins
1 cup English walnuts
7 cups sugar
Wash raisins and add to other ingredients except nut meats. Cook until mixture is thick and clear. Add nut meats 5 minutes before removing from fire. Pack in clean sterilized jars and seal at once.

Pear Honey.
Cut ripe, fresh pears into small pieces. Use a little less than half sugar, after weighing both pears and sugar; mix and cook the honey a little each day for three days. This method makes better honey than finishing at one cooking.

Spiced Pears.
8 lbs. pears
9 cups sugar
2 qts. vinegar
4 sticks cinnamon
1 whole clove for each pear
Peel pears, and meantime cook the syrup (above ingredients) about 10 minutes. Add pears to syrup (after sticking one whole clove in each and cook until tender. Let them stand in the syrup overnight. In the morning, put the cold pears in sterilized jars; heat the syrup to a consistency, by boiling down, equal to honey, and pour over the pears; seal.

Ginger Pear Conserve.
4 lbs. prepared fresh pears

SOLDIER'S FAMILIES LACK FOOD IS CLAIM

London, Dec. 6.—(AP)—An assertion by Laborite William Dobbie that the wives of soldiers who have been with the army since August have had to pawn their possessions in order to buy food for their children, threw the House of Commons into an uproar today.

Dobbie asserted the soldiers' wives had not received military allowances.

He left the house rather than apologize.

"The needs of these people are greater than the prestige of this house," he said.
