Turtles. Hanover, Mass.-(U.P.)-Priscilla and Judy Brooks found a turtle with the markings "A.R. M. '96," and the fact was noted briefly in newspapers. Since then they have received letters from Elbridge, N. Y., Londonville, O., and Benson, W. Va., in which the writers told them and how they marked the turtle with those initials.

Admits Abducting Niece

O. V. Miner, Oklahoma railroad worker, is shown as he pleaded guilty in a Phoenix, Ariz., court to stealing his 12-year-old niece, Alice Vestal, ten years ago, thus solving one of Arizona's oldest abduction cases. County Attorney Richard Harless (right) said Miner married the girl in Oklahoma, became the father of her four children, and never communicated with her parents, now living in Ashland, Ore., where it was reported he had written to his wife and she turned the letter over to the authorities.

Ashland Mother Tells Story Of Her Daughters Kidnaping

Ashland, Dec. 7.—(Sp.)—Mrs. John Frank Vestal, mother of Alice Vestal Miner, kidnap victim of Otis Vincent Miner, 51-year old Oklahoman, today told of brutal treatment of her daughter during the past 10 years, during which Miner had kept her a virtual prisoner, forbidding her to have friends, hiding her when chance of discovery appeared and finally deserting her when she applied to Picher, Okla., authorities for help.

The missing daughter of the Ashland couple appeared at their home in September, accompanied by her four children, aged from two to nine years. She had applied to a welfare agency in Miami, Okla., and the agency, through contact with officials in Picher, Phoenix, Ariz., and Jackson county, Oregon, found the address of Mr. and Mrs. Vestal here. Transportation expenses also were provided by the welfare agency.

The children, Elsie, Marvin, Opal and Charles, in order of their age, were born in Picher, but Miner spirited the girl-mother, then 15, to a nearby town for their marriage.

Fled For Year For the first year of their life together, the couple led a fugitive existence through the middle-west, and Alice Vestal was forced to hide beneath a bed in Miner's car to avoid detection. The man worked at "any kind of a job for any kind of wages," the girl told her mother, rather than be required to give full particulars about himself.

When life in Picher, with her husband became unbearable, the young woman applied to city authorities for aid. They informed her that they could do nothing unless her father swore out a warrant. In some manner, Miner learned that police had been contacted, so he fled, leaving his wife and their children with no means of support.

Meager Income Shared When the young woman and her children came here she was taken into the home of her parents as 71 California street. Although four of her young brothers and sisters already shared the meager income of the middle-aged parents, Alice Vestal-Miner's parents told her that she was welcome to a share of what they had.

At the time of the girl's abduction in Phoenix 10 years ago the Vestals had been "better off" financially, but their money had gone in the ramblings about the midwest and west which they followed on tips that they might find the missing daughter. At one time a reward was offered for the girl's return, Mrs. Vestal said.

Mr. and Mrs. Vestal came to Ashland from Colorado three years ago. Letter Was Tipoff Shortly after Mrs. Miner arrived here in September, she got a letter from her husband. It had been addressed to her at their old home in Picher, but a neighbor had mailed it to the

SNAKE CATCHERS USE PAIL OF COLD WATER

Elm Creek, Neb.—(P)—Down this way when the boys want a little excitement they go hunting rattlesnakes with a pail of cold water and long-handled clamp.

The rattlers hide out during the winter in a hole-pocked pasture. On warm days they crawl partially out of their holes to bask in the sun.

The hunters pour water on the snakes, which chills them so much they wriggle all the way out. Then they place the long-handled clamp on back of their heads.

You can bring em' back alive if you want to, but most of the boys kill them first.

Montgomery, Ala. (U.P.)—Alabama has the best pig crop in 16 years, according to J. C. Garrett, chief of the state crop-reporting service. Continued expansion is forecast for next year, too.
