CHAMELEON LOVE LIFE GIVES DARWIN THEORY FIRST CONFIRMATION

Columbus, O., Dec. 28.—(AP)—In the love life of Florida chameleons one of the first confirmations of Darwin's theory of the influence of sex on evolution has been found.

This was reported today to the American Association for the Advancement of Science by Dr. G. K. Noble, of the American Museum of Natural History, New York. Darwin said evolution had two motors, natural selection and sexual selection.

The first, better known as survival of the fittest, has long been accepted. But Dr. Noble said thousands of naturalists have studied sexual selection among animals without finding the confirmation.

These Florida chameleons, he said, are surprising. The males know each female personally, and know other males personally too. They fight the other males.

A chameleon stakes out its own ground, which becomes his own, unless another male wants to fight him for it. Then he waits for females to enter the preserve. They do, usually in numbers. The females then fight among themselves to see which one is to be boss lady chameleon.

If, said Dr. Noble, the fighting is severe, it ends with only one female remaining. In that case, the two chameleons make a truly monogamous pair.

One result is that the female selects the most attractive male and passes on his traits to future generations of males, thus bringing Darwin's rule into play.

FOREST SERVICE AUDIT WILL GIVE TAXPAYERS INFORMATION SOUGHT

Salem, Ore., Dec. 28.—(AP)—Gov. Charles A. Sprague today wrote the Marion county tax league, who recently demanded and investigation into the state forestry board, that a complete audit of the department would be released shortly after January 1.

The tax league asked Sprague for information relative to state-owned cars operated by employees of the forestry department, the cost of operating a plane, and the cost of several new buildings.

Governor Sprague said that most matters included in the tax league's questionnaire will be answered in the audit, but refused any other comment.
