CENTRAL PT. GYM PLAN EXPLAINED BY SCHOOL BOARD

Taxpayers to Vote on Proposal After Bids Show Probable Cost of Structure

A proposal to erect a new Central Point school gymnasium will be submitted to the taxpayers after bids have been received on the structure and the cost can be determined, it was said in a formal statement issued Saturday to school patrons by the board of directors of Central Point school district No. 6.

The board's statement in full follows:

In response to numerous inquiries and requests from interested school patrons the school board has again taken up the matter of building a gymnasium.

The need for more modern facilities for the health and physical education program in both grade and high school has been seen here for several years. The Parent-Teacher association took up this matter over two years ago with the school board and consideration was given to building a playshed. Investigation of the experiences of other schools led to the conclusion that any building not closed in would not be satisfactory. The consensus of opinion of all who studied the question was that the best plan would be to use the present structure for playshed purposes and to build a large modern gymnasium which would be satisfactory not only for present needs but for the future. This will mean a larger first cost but every one interested is agreed that the mistake must not be made of building too small.

Over a year ago the school board conferred with officials of the PWA hoping to get a government grant to help in the construction. Withdrawal of the PWA program and increased restriction on building public buildings caused this plan to fail. Later the matter was taken up with the WPA with the hope that it might furnish the labor. However, lack of sufficient skilled laborers on WPA rolls, restrictions on building materials, and difficulties in agreeing on plans, led to the failure of this plan.

With all of this experience back of them the school board is convinced that the only satisfactory plan of procedure is to get regular certified bids from all interested contractors. When these bids are in and the actual cost of building is known the question of voting bonds will be submitted to the people for their approval or disapproval.

It is the unanimous opinion of the board that if a building is built it shall be large enough for the future, that it shall be planned to meet the necessary needs of a building of this type, and that it shall be built as economically as possible. They are aware of the fact that a building which will be satisfactory in size, plan and construction will mean an expenditure of quite a large sum of money. They are of the opinion that it will be much better not to build at all than to build at a smaller cost and then have something not at all satisfactory.

The school board wish to make clear to the public that in calling for bids before submitting the question of bonds to a vote they are in no way trying to force a building program on anyone. The final decision is in the hands of the taxpayers. If they wish this building built, then the school board will do their best to see that it is done economically.

Three pictures were purchased for the library and study hall of Junior hi.

The magazine chairman reported more subscriptions this year for the National Parent-Teacher magazine than ever before.

Interesting talks were given by Mrs. Wessela on Leisure Arts This Summer; Mrs. Marjorie Pena on the Girl Scout's Day Camp and by Riney Cook on Athletics This Summer.
