Ann Sheridan in Rialto Show

"Aw, Come On In" Humphrey Bogart pleads with America's "Oomph" girl, Ann Sheridan, who seems to prefer to stay outside—in this scene from Louis Bromfield's new and startling comedy-drama, "It All Came True," which comes to the New Rialto theatre for Sunday and Monday. Bromfield, author of "The Rains Came" and others now deals with the hopes and disappointments of a group of people living in a New York boarding house. Miss Sheridan plays a nightclub entertainer home between engagements; Bogart is seen as a gangster who blackmails young Jeffrey Lynn into taking him home to his mother's boarding house for a hideout; Una O'Connor as the mother; Zasu Pitts as a love-lorn maid; and Felix Bressart as a great magician—starboarder at the establishment—sweet on Zasu.
