Ford Says Plant Can Make Thousand Warplanes Daily

Dearborn, Mich., May 29. — (UP) — Automobile Manufacturer Henry Ford says that if he is given six months' preparation he can turn out one thousand warplanes a day at his River Rouge factory.

Furthermore, said Ford, he is ready to throw the resources of the world's largest factory into national defense. He said the one thousand planes a day figure is no dream, and declared that such a rate of production could be achieved without adding any new buildings to his plant.

The River Rouge factory covers one thousand acres and is equipped with railroads, ships, blast furnaces and more machine mechanics than any other industrial concern in the world.

The production facilities of the plant, after necessary revision, could be concentrated on the output of airplanes, engines and parts.

Surveys of the plant already have been made by army and navy experts. Incidentally, at its peak output, the plant has turned out 10,000 automobiles per day.

Ford said that peak production in national defense can be reached only if industry is permitted to manage itself. He is a foe of what he calls government interference in business.

Ford suggested that competent aviation experts such as Colonel Charles Lindbergh or Captain Eddie Rickenbacker, the president of Eastern Airlines and a former auto manufacturer, be placed in charge of the mass program.

The manufacturer declared that whenever the order is given he and his industrial empire will swing into the national defense program, as, to use his own words, "any American citizen should."

Wonder whatever became of....?

Did his classmates lose track of him? How could they? He was the sort of friend that all of us would want to keep... mostly because of his understanding slant on life and people and things. He was active in athletics, yet his studies never suffered... nor did overwork cheat him of recreation and relaxation. Light-hearted, yet serious when problems faced him... always master of his worries. He avoided idlers, but added constantly to his circle of sincere friends. He was courageous without being reckless, confident without being cocksure... moderate in all things. Everybody said he'd make good. He has.
