Bing Crosby With Gloria Jean Head Cast at Craterian

Five of the greatest entertainers ever to grace the vaudeville stage are to be seen in support of Bing Crosby and Gloria Jean, co-stars of "If I Had My Way," at the Craterian theater, starting today.

The quintet of old-timers consists of Blanche Ring, Trixie Friganza, Grace LaRue, Julian Eltinge and the great minstrel man, Eddie Leonard.

The famous personages were signed to appear in sequences in which Bing and Gloria are proprietors of a cafe. Failing for lack of business, they conceive the idea of inviting the old-time vaudeville figures to be guests at the cafe and the place becomes popular.

Miss Ring, in the picture, sings the song for which she was famous, "Rings on My Fingers," while Leonard performs his great specialty song, "Ida."

Other famous vaudevillians to appear in the cast are Charles Winniger and El Brendel, who have been continuously before the public through the medium of pictures.

He's the boy, after all these years of Eddie's frustrated desire. Even so, the comedian only becomes Baby's daddy by adoption—when, as the timid professor in a fashionable girls' school, he fosters a foundling and develops an intense love for it. Complications set in when the girls in the school discover his secret and insist on playing mother to the infant. Judith Anderson, who practically "stole" the honors in "Rebecca," Ralph Morgan, Rita Johnson, Bonita Granville, Nydia Westman and the new Mrs. William Powell, Diana Lewis, have featured roles in the cast.

Rialto Cowboy

Rough-riding, devil-may-care George O'Brien comes to the New Rialto theater tomorrow, starting a three-day run in "Prairie Law," which will play as the companion action feature with "Yukon Flight," starring Renfrew of the Royal Mounted. Renfrew and his Red Raiders take to the air to bring justice to a band of ruthless crooks who are trying to steal a mail franchise from the Yukon and Columbia Mail Service by attacking their planes as they fly over snow-capped passes in the Far North. They also try to take over a mine owned by one of Renfrew's lady friends—but in the thrilling climax the rustlers are brought to earth by the Royal Mounties. James
