

New Serial June 25

A swiftly-paced mystery romance, "Casual Slaughters," written by Virginia Hanson, will be the next serial story appearing in The Mail Tribune. The author is a daughter of a retired colonel, and her brother is also a retired army officer and as might be expected her story deals with the army. The new serial will start June 25.

A Veteran Remembers
To the editor:
Now that the new French premier has asked for an armistice, is it not about time to apply the same vindictive expressions to Premier Petain and vice-Premier Weygand that the newspapers and England and the war zealots of this country applied to King Leopold of Belgium when he ordered the Belgians to lay down their arms? namely, traitor, Nazi, 5th column, coward, etc.

In reply to the letter in today's Tribune by the Rogue River gentleman, he himself is endowed with the qualities that go to make dictators. He advocates investigating all those advocating "no-fight." In other words; you have got to do as I say or you are a 5th columnist; you have to think as I do or you are Nazi. You cannot think for yourself, I'll do that for you. He wants to investigate everyone who disagrees with him, for nobody is as patriotic as he, if his opinion differs. It is such as he who augments the internal strife he fears by assuming dictatorial rights and preventing sensible contemplation of a terrible situation.

Evidently he did not participate in the last war to save the world for democracy. If he did and happened to be sent across he evidently has forgotten the insults heaped upon the Americans in England by the Tommies. He has forgotten how barbwire fences were erected between the English and American training camps and this fence patrolled by both nations with sentries with orders to shoot anyone who tried to cross. This was done to prevent American conquest of England before we were taken to France. Nor does he remember the insults of the English officers that were to train us and the near rebellion that was alleviated only when American officers were again put in charge. I have not forgotten because I was there.

Key Pitman's reply to Col. Lindbergh is another evidence of a dictator's denial of expressing an opinion, hinting of 5th columnist influences. His oration—it was nothing else—did not reply to Lindbergh's logic but ran to sneering sarcasm that was not as subtle as Mark Anthony's eulogy of Brutus but savored more of the highly glorified patriotism of the stay-at-homes during the last European entanglement. It's easy enough to be patriotic when you can say, "Let George do the fighting," as is England's custom, but when you happen to be "George" it's altogether different. So I say, "Stay in your own backyard and if you don't like the rest of the world, fight when they start climbing the alley fence."
T. C. Cox.

Deport Obstructionists
To the editor:
There appears to have been eighteen votes cast in the senate against the proposal to make American military equipment available for the allies, and this opposition is registered when the front line of democracy is crumbling because mechanized equipment is lacking.

Our material, if not used soon will become obsolete, and there is a prayer on every lip that somehow we may help. But there are eighteen senators who are opposed to rendering any material aid to the allies, preferring to write notes of sympathy.

They would not lift the arms embargo, they would not extend credit, they would not give for the cause of democracy and national integrity save to obstruct and harass every constructive attempt.

In the face of this, we direct our attention to finding inside workers among the men of the street. We ferret out a harmless religious cult who will not salute our flag, but would die before they would "Heil Hitler," and the house in a dramatic cloud of oratory vote to deport Harry Bridges and Hamilton Fish distinguishes himself in a glorious speech of denunciation. Fish has given Hitler all the aid he could by opposing the allies.

Are we not approaching this matter from the wrong end? Why has no one proposed to deport our obstructionist congressmen. There would be some sense in that. It is by now becoming apparent that by failing to give sufficient aid in time we are faced with the necessity for immediate military aid or a period of intense military preparedness that will cost a fabulous sum and end in an inevitable carnage. Now that the dam age is done these men blatantly wave a flag and deport others. The traitors in Norway that did the most harm were men in high places. It is time our own high place obstructionists were liquidated. The ax and block would suit me, but the democratic method is a purge in the elections. Where does the Oregon delegation stand?

C. F. Davies

Spiteful Remarks.
To the Editor:
Last night Sen. Key Pitman replied to Col. Lindbergh's speech. Sen. Pitman cast aspersions on Col. Lindbergh's sincerity and patriotism and hinted about fifth column influence. His remarks sounded spiteful rather than like arguments of an honest difference of opinion.
Patience O'Hara Thompson.

GIRLS DAY CAMP GETS UNDER WAY TOMORROW MORN

Girls 7 to 10 years old are invited to attend the first day of this season's Day Camp, Wednesday, whether they are Girl Scouts or not. Girls should arrive at camp between 10 and 10:15 a. m. and register as they arrive. Each is responsible for her own transportation. Committee members, parents and neighbors are taking turns in transportation of the younger group.

Each camper pays five cents per day to cover cost of handicraft material, use of equipment, archery supplies and special treats. Each brings her own lunch, such as outlined in the camp folder or one of her own choosing.

Day Camp closes Wednesdays at 3 p. m. and campers are not permitted to leave the grounds during the camping period without special permission from parents.

Campers attending the Red Cross swimming classes or the school leisure arts classes in the morning and who report at camp for luncheon and remain the rest of the afternoon, will be given credit for a full day attendance and will be eligible for perfect attendance awards.

On extra warm days, local creameries will sell cold milk or fruit drinks during the noon hour.

Day Camp equipment, tables, stoves, shelters etc., is all in readiness, provided by the City of Medford. All departments under the local city council are cooperating to make this community-wide activity available for every girl desiring a camping experience.

The Day Camp program is under supervision of the local Girl Scout Council.

WILSON'S DAUGHTER LIVES IN COLONY OF RELIGIOUS MYSTICS

Seattle, June 18.—(P)—The daughter of the American World War president was reported today to be living in seclusion from the world in a colony of religious mystics at Bondicherry, India.

George Nakashima, American-born architect and graduate of the University of Washington, revealed on his return here from India that he had met Miss Margaret Wilson, daughter of President Woodrow Wilson, in the colony at Bondicherry, where Nakashima went to construct a dormitory for followers of the Brahma religious leader Sri Aurobindo.

Miss Wilson, now 34 years old, entered the colony two years ago, Nakashima said, adding: "She says she will never return to the outside world."

The followers of Sri Aurobindo, Nakashima said, are members of a faith which involves recognition of a multiple deity. Brahma often pictured as a four-headed figure in religious art. The leader of the cult is a Hindu graduate of Cambridge university.

Tunis, capital of Tunisia, has a metropolitan population of some 253,000, of which, in 1931, French numbered 33,649 and Italians 40,457.

STRANGE AS IT SEEMS

RANGE OF PENGUINS
Contrary to popular belief, penguins are not exclusively Antarctic birds. There exist about twenty-two species of penguins, ranging from the Antarctic continent far north to the Galapagos Islands on the Equator, but none is found in the northern hemisphere. Strange as it seems, some fossil specimens measure seven feet tall.

AUTOS IN STORM
Although lightning ordinarily seeks anything metallic to strike, you would be safer inside an all-steel automobile than out of one during an electrical storm, says Dr. C. B. McEashron of the General Electric company.
