

RUSSIAN WORKERS GIVEN ADDED LOAD IN FEAR OF WAR

Must Work Six Days Per Week "As In Capitalist Countries"—Danger Seen

Moscow, June 25.—(A)—Because of increasing war danger and the need of greater production, the soviet Russian government adopted today a new working week—six days of work and a day of rest—to replace its revolutionary week of five working days and a day of rest on the sixth.

Abandonment of the six-day week, which was a feature of the changes wrought by the Bolshevik revolution, was recommended by the soviet trade unions and adopted by the government.

The soviet radio said that the number of working hours had been increased in capitalist countries, and added that "danger for our country also is increasing," and that it was, therefore, necessary to step up the number of working days and hours to improve the nation's defense.

Like Capitalists. In a message to all workers, technicians, engineers, office employees and members of the trade unions, the all union central council of trade unions said:

"Throughout the capitalist world—Europe, Asia and America, Africa and Australia—industry and transportation facilities and agriculture have been fully subordinated to the interests of war.

"The screw of capitalist exploitation has been tightened to the limit, workers work 10, 12 and more hours a day, all Sundays and holidays have been abolished. Through this universal militarization of economy the imperialist states have tremendously increased the production of all armaments.

"Thus the war danger for our country has grown, and the international situation becomes fraught with surprises."

Refugee Children, Innocent War Victims, Appeal to America's Heart for Survival

"DEATH-DEALING" airplanes ride the skies. The carnage of their creation sweeps many lands. Armored tanks and motorized artillery roll across whole countries destroying, as in a blight, all standing in their way. Cattle, crops, homes, people—innocent and defenseless children—stand in fear, then in despair, only to fall into destruction. Some will live. They must be aided to endure, to struggle on, to survive.

This was the message directed to America's generous heart by Chairman Norman H. Davis of the American Red Cross, in asking prompt contributions to a $10,000,000 war relief fund to be spent by the Red Cross for help to military and civilian wounded, and the homeless people of the warring nations.

"We must send relief as needed and not too late to be of use," Mr. Davis said. "We must send clothing, bedding, shoes, medications, surgical dressings and food."

Before the most recent devastation of neutral countries by aerial blitzkriegs was begun, the American Red Cross had sent 320,000 garments, knitted sweaters and hospital clothes for the women and children victims in England, Finland, France, Germany-occupied Poland, and for Polish refugees in other countries. To the Red Cross societies of the nations engaged in battle, the Red Cross sent 333,000 surgical dressings. These garments and surgical dressings were made in 1,500 Red Cross Chapters throughout America. In addition, the American Red Cross purchased medicines, shoes, blankets, knitted underwear and almost a thousand other items at a cost of $1,500,000 for shipment to the Red Cross societies of belligerent nations.

But with destruction, suffering and thousands of wounded added each day to the frightful toll of war as new nations become involved, the American Red Cross appealed to the nation for at least a ten million dollar relief fund. Contributions can be made to the local Red Cross Chapter in any community in America, Mr. Davis said.

NAZIS OPEN STRONG TRADE OFFENSIVE IN LOWER SO. AMERICA

Buenos Aires, June 25.—(A)—Germany has already opened a strong "trade offensive" in lower South America designed to swing such nations as Argentina and Uruguay away from a close economic and military cooperation with the United States, a well-informed source said today.

Agents of the Nazi government have established contact with Argentine officials, bringing full authority from the reich to negotiate gigantic barter deals, the informant asserted.

These agents are reported to be offering to purchase millions of pesos worth of Argentine foods and raw products, making payments through projects such as the electrification of Argentine state railways and the construction of various hydro-electric plants to offset the dwindling supplies of coal and oils in this country.

MORE YOUNG PERSONS DRINKING TO EXCESS, INVESTIGATORS FIND

Chicago — (A.P.) — Excessive drinking, especially among persons between 20 and 30 years old, has increased greatly in the last three years, according to Charles R. Jones, executive vice president of the American Business Men's Research Foundation.

"A survey reveals that in the younger age group two out of five men and one out of twelve women drink in such amounts as to constitute in many cases sub-standard risks for life insurance companies," Jones said. Jones said the foundation was conducting an analysis of the experiences of insurance companies as concerns drinking habits.

"Drinking habits, we have found, are responsible for one of the most difficult situations ever to arise in the life insurance business," he said.

"Many directors and underwriters are advising us that they are forced either to decline outright or to accept only at special high rates, more applicants for life insurance for excessive drinking habits than for any other cause," Jones said.

One company reported that for each 100 applications rejected 24 indulged excessively in liquor.

"With high blood pressure and serious heart ailments, both frequently the results of drinking, they are responsible for more rejections than all other causes combined," Jones said.

A Footsore Fable

Once upon a time there was a man who was lost. He wandered around for days, trying to find his way home. He would walk five miles down one road, until he discovered that it didn't lead to where he wanted to go, and then he would walk down another road. He was very unhappy, and his feet hurt.

After a long time he met another man, and asked for directions. The second man looked at him and said, "Isn't that a map sticking out of your pocket?"

"Yes," said the man who was lost.

"Then why don't you look at the map, and find out which road you should take?"

"My goodness!" said the lost man, "I never thought of that!"

Why should you wander all over town, looking for values and good buys, when you'll find an up-to-the-minute shopping map in the advertisements in this paper?

The answer is, of course: You shouldn't!

Save yourself many weary footsteps and precious, hard-earned dollars, by reading the advertisements carefully, every day.
