

BRITAIN TO FALL WITHIN TEN DAYS, ALLEY PREDICTS

Panay Cameraman Is Impressed by Nazis After Witnessing Dunquerque

Hollywood, June 28.—(P)—Cameraman Norman Alley, who photographed the Japanese bombing of the United States gunboat Panay in 1937, is back from Europe with a prediction that Germany will soon conquer the British Isles.

The conquest will begin within 10 days, he asserted, and will be complete ten days later.

"We must be impressed by the Nazi war machine," said Alley—"sufficiently impressed to begin preparing for any eventuality as fast and efficiently as possible."

Quick Destruction

"In Rotterdam I stood by and watched 276 blocks razed by the rain of Nazi death from the skies. And it only took ten minutes.

"At least 180,000 troops were killed or captured at the evacuation of Dunquerque and Calais. The Germans estimated 200,000, which I consider far more accurate than the British figures. I was there and photographed the evacuation."

Alley laughed about reports of a German food shortage.

"Why Germans are eating as well as we do," he said, "Holland is one of the world's greatest food baskets, and Germany tapped this source and got every bit of it."

BRITISH SUB SINKS BIG NAZI TRANSPORT

London, June 28.—(P)—The admiralty announced today the submarine Tetrach had torpedoed and sunk a deeply-laden German transport of 8,000 tons off the south coast of Norway.

The announcement said the Tetrach was counter-attacked by Nazi torpedo boats and planes but escaped.

First Coop Gets Power

Portland, June 28.—(P)—A contract for the purchase of 300 kilowatts of prime power from the Bonneville power administration was signed yesterday by the Benton-Lincoln Electric cooperative. It was the first Bonneville power sale to a cooperative power distribution agency organized under direction of the rural electrification administration.

Candy Firecrackers Make Safe, Sane Fourth Go Off With a Bang

YOU can win hundred per cent approval from the juveniles for a safe and sane Fourth if you substitute toothsome candy fireworks for the forbidden explosives. They can practice a bit of holiday magic and make the firecrackers and pinwheels themselves if you give them this failure-proof recipe calling for sweetened condensed milk.

Co-star the candy for dessert with this novel Independence Day pie. The creamy filling is magically failure-proof if you use this short-cut recipe made with sweetened condensed milk. It needs no cooking and can be whisked together in four or five minutes. And you're sure of a dessert that will raise any meal to the rank of a holiday feast.

Safe and Sane Fireworks

1/2 cup sweetened condensed milk
1 teaspoon vanilla
4 cups sifted confectioners' sugar (about)

Blend sweetened condensed milk and vanilla. Add confectioners' sugar gradually and continue mixing until smooth and creamy. Form some of the fondant into small rolls, about 1/4 inches in diameter, and cut into 3-inch lengths. Chill thoroughly. Cover with melted chocolate which has been allowed to cool after melting. With the point of a small knife, push a short length of string for a fuse, carefully into one end of each "firecracker".

To make the pinwheels, roll a 1/4 inch layer of fondant, spread with a layer of fondant darkened with cocoa, roll like a jelly roll, chill, and slice in diagonal slices 1/2 inch thick.

Magic Star Pie

1 1/2 cups (1 can) sweetened condensed milk
1/2 cup lemon juice
1 cup raspberries
1/2 cup whipping cream
2 tablespoons confectioners' sugar
Vanilla, Water Pie Crust or baked pastry shell

Blend sweetened condensed milk and lemon juice. Stir until mixture thickens. Fold in raspberries. Pour into baked pastry shell or pie plate (9-inch) lined with Vanilla Wafer Pie Crust. Decorate with a star of raspberries. Garnish with whipped cream sweetened with confectioners' sugar. Chill before serving.

Vanilla Wafer Pie Crust

Roll enough vanilla wafers to make 1/4 cup of crumbs. Cut enough vanilla wafers in halves to stand around edge of pie plate. Cover bottom of plate with crumbs and fill in spaces between wafers. Pour in filling as usual.

Carson in New Role

Portland, June 28.—(P)—Mayor Joseph K. Carson, a veteran of the political arena, tossed his hat into another arena yesterday. At the request of three youngsters, he agreed to participate in a calf-tying contest July 3 at the St. Paul, Ore., rodeo. Mayors of 12 other Oregon cities also will compete.

Parks Become Gardens

London (U.P.)—Even the royal parks of England have to do their share of making sacrifices for the war. The beautiful green stretches of Bushey park, Richmond park and Regents park are being turned into gardens. Keepers have been instructed to grow vegetables.

Campaign of Willkie Unique In American Political Book

Philadelphia, June 28.—(P)—Wendell Willkie gave his own answer today to the question which has had a lot of politicians here puzzled: When did he first begin to take his presidential boom seriously?

The date, the Republican nominee said, was May 11. On that day, he related, he received and accepted an invitation to speak before a meeting of Minnesota Republicans at St. Paul.

The invitation, he added, was extended after he had followed before a meeting of publishers in New York.

By Max Hill

Philadelphia, June 28.—(P)—Wendell Willkie has emerged with the Republican presidential nomination from a campaign built, in the words of one of his own close supporters, of "match sticks and chewing gum."

It was a campaign unique in American political history, one which had no beginning that you could put your finger on, yet in the late pre-convention days swept the country with amazing power.

The scattered, hit-or-miss tactics of his supporters finally evolved into a regular pattern, but skepticism of hard-handed political regulars wasn't eliminated until he actually translated this public appeal into votes of delegates.

New York Focal Point

New York, of course, was the focal point for Willkie's campaign organization, but the empire state's delegation to the convention played little, if any, part in his early reckonings. Most of the delegation was pledged to Thomas E. Dewey, and Willkie knew that an entanglement with Dewey's powerful organization would work untold harm to his efforts.

He even refrained from public appearances in the states described as "Dewey states."

But to get back to the beginning.

In the spring, Willkie, busy with the affairs of Commonwealth and Southern Corporation, pictured himself only as a dark horse contender for the nomination. Russell Davenport, then managing editor of the magazine Fortune, but now affiliated with Willkie, sought from the public utilities magnate an article which would outline his beliefs. It was published in the April issue.

"The response," says Davenport, a nervous, quick-thinking, phrase-making sort of man, "was a deluge of requests for reprints. It got out of hand."

Little Money Spent

There is no way of determining how much money was spent for Willkie. He personally has insisted several times that there be no effort to raise funds, no formal campaign. And right up to convention time he was without that usually essential person—a campaign manager.

Davenport, a week or so before the convention, thought that maybe $30,000 had been spent, but said he had no way of estimating the amount accurately. Of that sum, he added, he had spent about $3,000 of his own money.
