"Brother Orchid" Here Wednesday

One of the many riotous scenes in "Brother Orchid", coming to the Craterian Theatre tomorrow, is the one in which Edward G. Robinson gives Allen Jenkins (one of his "boys") a severe calling down. Why? Because Jenkins forgot to send his boss a memorandum of a rubbing-out party and the boss is a stickler for the niceties.

As a gangster who goes gunning for culture, Robinson's role is reminiscent of the laughable "Slight Case of Murder" of a few years back. And when he winds up in a monastery—taking care of the flowers, of all things—it's almost too much to believe. Ann Sothern, Ralph Bellamy, Humphrey Bogart and Donald Crisp are featured.

Mr. and Mrs. Mischke were speakers on the missionary program during the world general assembly held recently in Oklahoma City. The public is cordially invited to hear them.
