National Capitol WITH John W. Kelly

CONTINUED FROM PAGE ONE PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT, Jim Farley, et al., are personally fond of Oregon's McNary. The reason is simple. He is an adversary who plays fair, a good sportsman, never descending to personalities. They know that his strategy has encompassed their defeat on many important issues—the supreme court bill, for example. With only a handful of Republicans in the senate it is only by strategy that the minority can win points.
