"Wagons Westward" Opens Today

A rousing story of frontier men and women brings Chester Morris to the New Rialto theater for a three-day run starting today in "Wagons Westward," in which the popular action star has a dual role—playing twin brothers. He portrays Tom Cook, notorious outlaw intent upon robbing the entire west of its gold and cattle; and at the same time plays his twin brother, David, a peaceful officer of the law sent west by the government to arrest and bring back for trial the ruthless Tom Cook. His resemblance to his brother makes the going tough—but with the help of his uncle, played by George "Gabby" Hayes, he is able to capture Tom and his gang and bring them to justice. Others in the all-star cast include Anita Louise, Buck Jones, Ona Munson and Gunn "Big Boy" Williams.

"Untamed" Offers Dramatic Story in Impressive Setting

Employing for its background the impressive grandeur of the mountains and forests of the North-Canadian Rockies, starring three popular Hollywood personalities—Ray Milland, Patricia Morrison and Akim Tamiroff—an exciting and completely entertaining picturization of Sinclair Lewis' "Mantrap" has been brought to the screen of the Craterian theater, entitled "Untamed" and filmed entirely in Technicolor.

Briefly—the story tells of the nervous breakdown of a young society doctor—Ray Milland—who is ordered into the north woods to recuperate. Engaging Akim Tamiroff as his guide, Milland is hurt during a bear hunt, and is left in the care of Tamiroff's beautiful, city-bred wife, Patricia Morrison, while the extended hunt is continued. Chafing against the sly glances and open dislike of the women of the tiny community, and yearning to return to the social life she had previously enjoyed, Patricia is strongly attracted to the young city doctor, and both are dismayed when they realize that their love is mutual.

Just as Milland is preparing to return to his city practice, an epidemic of streptococcus breaks out in the now snowed-in village. Milland starts off alone to the nearest town, fifteen miles away, in a raging blizzard to get a necessary serum to combat the disease. Patricia, fearing for his life, follows. Returning from the hunt, Tamiroff is convinced by gossiping neighbors that the two have run away together, and starts after them, with murder in his heart. He finds them unconscious and slowly freezing to death in a deserted cabin, and, from this point the picture builds to a tensely dramatic climax.

history. Congressional resolutions on the subject were defeated several times in the nineteenth century. In 1876 the house adopted an anti-third term resolution, as did the senate in 1928.

Only 11 men have had opportunity to consider breaking the precedent. Washington, Jefferson, Madison, Monroe, Jackson, Grant, Cleveland, Wilson, and Franklin D. Roosevelt served two elective terms each. Theodore Roosevelt and Coolidge served one elective term and completed an unexpired one. Lincoln and McKinley were elected to two terms, but were assassinated in office.

In his oft-quoted farewell address, Washington declined "being considered among the number of those out of whom a choice (for president) is to be made."

He had written Lafayette in 1788, however, that "I confess I differ widely from Mr. Jefferson and you as to the necessity or expediency of rotation in that office (of president)."

Jefferson said, however, that "the example of four presidents" had given the two-term tradition "the force of precedent and usage."
