

LOCAL and PERSONAL

On Business—Eldin Hicks of Gold Hill was a Medford caller today.

To Klamath—The Misses Edna Shaver, Betty Vilm, Margaret Dow and Maxine Love spent a brief time on business in Klamath Falls yesterday.

Visiting Here—Mrs. George Collins of Oakland, Cal., a former Medford resident, is the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Jap Andrews of 1404 West Main street. Mrs. Collins arrived last night.

Improving—Peggy Dean, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. Z. Dean of 1006 South Oakdale, who underwent an appendectomy in Community hospital July 13, is reported improving. She is now at home.

Johns Leaves—Claude Johns left this morning after spending a month here on business. He is auditor for the state unemployment compensation commission. He plans to transact business on the coast.

On Vacation—Mr. and Mrs. Howard B. Glascock and their daughters, Mary and Rosie, are spending a fortnight's vacation at the family cottage at Lake of the Woods. Mr. Glascock is a city fireman and amateur radio operator.

On Timber Mission—Alexander J. Jaenicke, division of timber management of the U. S. forest service at regional headquarters in Portland, today began a study of white and sugar pine in the Union Creek district of the Rogue River national forest. Purpose of the study was to establish a silvicultural practice, including the selection of trees, in the cutting of commercial timber. Mr. Jaenicke arrived from Portland by car last night.

Plane Passengers—H. R. Lukens arrived from Seattle by United Mainliner this forenoon and passengers leaving on the same plane were Miss Marjorie Hart of Eugene and Miss Virginia Lowrey, to San Francisco, and Mrs. Charles T. Robinson, to Los Angeles. Arrivals on the midnight Mainliner were Mrs. Catherine Byrne, from Portland, and E. W. Crutchfield, from Seattle. Departing on the same plane were G. T. Sedlmayr, to Oakland, and W. R. Hearst, Marion Davies, Gus Wahlberg and Miss Lee Wenzlick, to Los Angeles. The Hearst party arrived at the airport by motorcar from McCloud, Cal., where Hearst maintains a ranch. H. C. Rhodes left for Portland last night. Mrs. L. C. Wren left for San Francisco last evening after visiting here. Departing by Mainliner yesterday afternoon were R. C. Woodruff and Mrs. K. Grieve and Billy Grieve of Trail, to Portland, and J. B. Stam, to Seattle.

Firemen Called—The fire department's chemical crew was called at 12:39 p. m. today to put out a grass fire in the parking strip of the 400 block on South Riverside avenue.

Daughter Born—Word was received today of the birth in Portland Thursday evening of a girl to Mr. and Mrs. Kelton Strader, former Medford residents and well known here. The baby weighed eight pounds and has been named Karen Lee.

Completes Mission—Frederick Furst, division of wild life and range management at the regional U. S. forester's office in Portland, left by car this morning for Roseburg after engaging in a general inspection of the Rogue River national forest. Roseburg is headquarters for the Umpqua national forest.

Grass Fire—A ward alarm was sounded at 5:09 p. m. yesterday when the fire department received an excited call to send a truck to 1120 Niantic street. When the firemen arrived, however, they found only a little patch of grass burning in a lot between two houses. The blaze was put out with a garden hose.

In Hospital—E. E. Stump of route 2 is confined in the Community hospital. His two daughters, Mrs. Evelyn Mathew and Mrs. Edythe Wilson, came to Medford to be with him. Mrs. Mathew lives in San Francisco and Mrs. Wilson came here from Ely, Nev. She will reside in Salt Lake City, Utah, after leaving here.

At Airport—Lieut. E. N. Stidd stopped at Medford municipal airport this morning to have his army Douglas observation plane refueled. He was en route from Oakland, Cal., to Fort Lewis, Wash. Arrivals yesterday included Capt. J. H. Clark, Salem to Oakland in a North American combat plane, and Capt. H. N. Bailey, Portland to San Rafael, Cal., in a Boeing bomber.

Divine Dues Home—Dr. Sherman L. Divine, pastor of the Presbyterian church, plans to return this evening from Portland and will occupy his pulpit Sunday morning speaking on "The Message of the River and the Hills." The message is based on a 1500 mile journey by motorcar across Washington and Oregon, including a visit to Grand Coulee and over the stone bridge on Lake Washington. During the past week, Dr. Divine has assisted the Rev. Engvald Iverson as vice moderator in presiding over the annual Synod of Oregon meeting in Portland. Mr. Iverson will return with Dr. Divine to Medford.

Chosen For Navy—Four youths, selected tentatively for enlistment in the U. S. navy, will leave here by train Monday night for Portland to take their final qualifying physical examinations. They are Robert L. Dooms of Ashland, Samuel Warren of Klamath Falls and Fred Ingram and Hiram D. Harris, CCC enrollees at Camp Wimer. If they pass the final medical examinations, they will go immediately to San Diego, Cal., for eight weeks of intensive preliminary training before being assigned to actual duty. Applications for future enlistment quotas are being received by George E. Patterson, recruiter, at the navy sub-station in the Medford federal building.

"Earthbound" Coming To Rialto

An unusual picture that goes as far as to out-top the famous "Topper" comedy—is "Earthbound," the story of a ghost who could not die—of a ghost who was haunted by the living, which comes to the New Rialto theatre for Sunday and Monday with Warner Baxter in the title role as the man who experienced the greatest of thrills; attend his own funeral; flirting with his own wife after he had taken the form of a ghost; getting even with the friends that had tormented him and killed him in life. Andrea Leeds and Lynn Bari play the two women in his life. Others in the cast include Henry Wilcoxon and Charley Grapewin. "The Last Alarm," the story of a fiend who murders with fire and featuring J. Farrell MacDonald, Polly Ann Young and Warren Hull, will play as the companion feature with the unusual "Earthbound."

"My Favorite Wife" Here Sunday

Mystified hotel clerk registering a man and woman as Mr. and Mrs. Just after the same man with a different woman had registered also as Mr. and Mrs. Cary Grant is the man, Gail Patrick and Irene Dunne are the two ladies in "My Favorite Wife," the hilarious marital comedy opening a three-day run Sunday at the Craterian theatre. The clerk is Donald MacBride.

The Joneses

Jed Prouty and Spring Byington head the cast of the popular Jones Family in their newest starring fun hit, "Quick Millions," which plays today and tomorrow only at the Roxy theatre with "Riders of Black River," starring Charles Starrett, as the companion Western. In this newest film, the Joneses strike it rich for a day in a Western gold mine—but run into more Indians than they do gold.

FORESTRY OFFICIALS CONFER REGARDING FIRE SUPPLY LINES

Emphasis was placed on the supply lines at a forest fire suppression conference sponsored yesterday by Medford CCC district headquarters at the quartermaster's office, headquarters detachment here. The conference covered the administration of fire camps in general but stress was put on the handling of subsistence and other supply items. Attending the conference were Dwight Phipps, district fire warden of the state forest patrol, Maurice L. Tedrow, assistant forester in charge of fire control on the Rogue River national forest, E. J. Brugger, assistant quartermaster of the Medford CCC district, and company officers and project superintendents of the Applegate, Williams Creek and South Fork CCC camps. You'll enjoy the Fresh Sea Foods from Holly's, 126 E. Sixth.

FARLEY TO STAY AT PARTY HELM FOR FOUR WEEKS

Rowdy Windup It was a rowdy wind-up to four days of stop-and-go politics in which Farley and a scattering of anti-third term conservatives sought to make a river flow uphill. They lost. The galleries clamored and there were shouts and boos from the floor last night and today as the constricting pressure of White House influence forced the convention steadily toward Wallace, a Republican recruit, for vice president.

The campaign is on between the Roosevelt-Wallace ticket ratified here and Republican presidential candidate Wendell L. Willkie and his running mate, Sen. Charles L. McNary of Oregon.

It is the New Deal vs. the most articulate and adverse critic of the Roosevelt administration that business has produced.

Whether this convention "drafted" Mr. Roosevelt or was "stage managed" into nominating him is a matter of some dispute. There are conservatives here who believe the latter.

Ultimatum From F. R. Conference room and platform rebellions blazed through the afternoon and early evening. But Wallace would not stay down. Mr. Roosevelt sent word that he would address the convention at 9 p. m., and then that he would not—unless he got his man. He got him after a wrangling roll call.

And then a silence fell upon the assembly. At 12:20 a. m., the president began to speak—just as eight years ago he spoke from the platform here in the Chicago stadium to accept his first nomination.

But this time he was not there. His voice came, smooth and reassuring as a benediction, from a cluster of loud speakers overhead as this Democratic man of all time, said—"I will."

No Campaigning No campaigning will he do this year, he told the convention, but he will talk to the press and over the radio from time to time to report to the people on the crisis he says exists and to refute "deliberate or unwitting falsification of fact, which are sometimes made by political candidates."

He was loathe to continue in the White House and would rather retire. But for the developments after Europe's September declarations of war, Mr. Roosevelt said, he would have renounced public office long before this. But, he said, he could not renounce it now.

"Every day that passed called for postponement of personal plans and partisan debate," he told the packed stadium, and the nation, "until the latest possible moment. The normal conditions under which I would have made public declaration of my personal desires were gone."

No. 1 Draftee "Thinking solely of the national good and of the international scene, I came to the reluctant conclusion that such declaration should not be made before the national convention. It was accordingly made to you within an hour after the permanent organization of the convention."

In this speech of acceptance Mr. Roosevelt made himself the nation's No. 1 draftee in the cause of peace and national defense and he said all citizens are agreed that some form of draft was as fair and necessary today as in 1917. And if his draft sticks, it will be because of the voters next November and not by action of the convention, he said.

"My conscience will not let me turn my back upon a call to service," he confided. "The right to make that call rests with the people through the American method of free election. Only the people themselves can draft president. If such a draft should be upon me, I say, in the utmost simplicity, I will, with God's help, continue to serve with the best of my ability and with the fullness of my strength."

And he thanked the convention for naming Wallace because, he said, he wanted a man of that turn of mind to fight beside him.

First Lady Speaks The first lady moved all smiling to the platform at the end of the bitter roll call for vice presidential nomination and said her husband was too busy to be there.

"To be a candidate of either great political party is a very serious and a very solemn thing," she said. "You cannot treat it as you would treat an ordinary nomination in an ordinary time."

If the back of rebellion against Wallace was not broken before, she broke it. Mrs. Roosevelt was telling those delegates to behave by appealing to their love of country. And she had her own tribute to Jim Farley and one he probably treasures more than the radioroom words that came from Washington this morning. The big man who went along so long and the woman who went along too, and still is going, are great friends.

Bankhead Second

The gallery whooped itself head-achy trying to prevent Farley from shouting into the tumult that he did not want to run for the vice presidency. Speaker William B. Bankhead was put up first and he ended with 329 and a fraction votes to Wallace's 627 and a fraction. There was real steam behind Bankhead and many a vote cast for him was preceded by some such remark as "a real Democrat." It will not down that Wallace was an Iowa Republican for years before he became an Iowa new dealer and a member of the president's cabinet, and each time Wallace was mentioned, directly or indirectly, there were lusty boos.

McNutt, withdrawal and all, took 68 votes. Sen. Alva B. Adams, (D., Colo.) collected 11 1/2 on the one and only vice presidential roll call. Farley got eight and from one to five were distributed among Jones, who also withdrew, and half a dozen others more or less informally nominated or not at all.

Improvements being made in the remodeling of the First Christian church on South Oakdale avenue at Ninth street include a new entrance for the sanctuary, a new covering for the outside which will be painted white, and flooring of the basement which will be divided into classrooms with steam heat and new equipment for the educational program of the church. The sanctuary will be changed to provide a more worshipful atmosphere and for the convenience and comfort of the worshippers, said the Rev. R. W. Coleman, pastor.

A special service will be held Sunday to commemorate the 27 years of service given by the present sanctuary. It will be the last service before the sanctuary is remodeled. All the older members of the church are especially invited and a bouquet will be presented to the person present who has been a member of the church for the longest time.

Mrs. M. E. Fisher is the only charter member of the church now living and the pastor hopes she will be able to attend. She joined the church when it was organized November 24, 1884. The public is invited also.

The church was organized in the home of E. D. Elwood, 135 South Central avenue. The church occupied a number of sites before moving to the present site in 1913.

It is expected that remodeling of the church will be completed by September 1. Meantime regular Sunday services will be held.
