

SALEM WILL MARK 100 YEAR HISTORY WITH CELEBRATION

Five Day Fiesta to Start July 31 — Parades, Pageant to Highlight Program

Salem, Ore., July 25.—(U.P.)—The Salem centennial, celebrating the founding of Salem by Jason Lee and his followers in 1840, will be a moving picture of the events of the past 100 years that saw the city emerge "from wilderness to wonderland".

The five day celebration beginning Wednesday of next week and running through the first four days of August will open with the arrival of river boats and river ceremonies depicting the part that the Willamette river played in the progress of the Oregon capital.

Most of Wednesday morning will be devoted to unveiling of the centennial museum at Willamette University. A style review will show the transition of clothing from the 1840 period until the present time.

The first of four regular forums on industrial, agricultural and transportation problems of the state will be held at Willamette University at 2 p.m.

Four Parades

Wednesday afternoon will also see the first of four parades, the opening fun parade, which will begin at 5 p.m. Other events planned for each evening are dances, both old time and modern, and music by the 35 bands and drum corps which will play at the celebration.

Climaxing each day's festivities will be presentation of the huge centennial pageant at the state fairgrounds. A stage one block long and half a block wide has been built, with scenery towering 50 feet above the earth on which to hold the pageant.

On this huge stage 3000 persons will depict the history of Salem since its founding, with music by a 60 piece symphony orchestra and a 200 voice mixed chorus providing the musical background.

Thursday morning special reunions and open houses have been slated for Willamette University, churches and pioneer business houses. Tours for visitors to industrial plants, farms and scenic spots have been arranged.

The evening parade will be devoted to the children and the second showing of the centennial pageant will follow. Dances and band concerts will be held in several parks of the city during the evening also.

River Carnival

Friday's program includes style reviews, a river carnival, another forum led by Dr. Burt Brown Barker of the University of Oregon and the regular evening pageant and dances. Friday's parade will be made up of old time horse-drawn vehicles and marching groups of people all in pioneer costumes.

Saturday's program will be highlighted by the grand centennial parade which will be about three hours in length and will be based on preparedness and military themes. Units of the National Guard and the regular army will participate as well as floats of merchants and civic organizations at the festival.

The forum Saturday will present notable industrial and political leaders and the final presentation of the pageant will be held in the evening. The governors and mayors ball at ten Saturday evening will conclude the day's festivities.

Sunday union services in all churches and homecoming for family and religious groups will ring down the curtain on Salem's first hundred years.

Mail orders for tickets are now being filled. Centennial Ticket office, 260 North High Street, Salem, Oregon is the address to which inquiries and applications for reserved seats may be made.
