MAILED FIST OF DICTATORS LULLS WAR IN BALKANS

But Feeling Still High, as Russia Grows — Hitler Aided.

By DeWitt MacKenzie

The point of immediate importance arising from the axis-imposed "settlement" of the Rumanian-Hungarian territorial quarrel is that Herr Hitler probably (though not certainly) has averted for the present a Balkan upheaval which would have been a calamity for his blitzkrieg against England—already running far behind schedule.

True, the Balkan pot was boiling angrily this morning. Not only were tempers running high in Rumania and Hungary (especially the former, who lost great treasure to her neighbor), but Greece was cleaning guns because of fears of Italian aggression.

The Russian bear was stalking the western boundaries of his preserves, which is a manner of describing mysterious war maneuvers. He was moving circumspectly, after his fashion, but with rumblings in his throat which might denote either dissatisfaction or pleasant anticipation.

Still, despite the tension the mailed fist of the axis powers ought to be able to keep the lid hammered down for the time being. If and when their pressure is lessened, watch out. There are several other features of this German-Italian move which are well worth consideration:

1. The arbitrary decision of Messrs. Hitler and Mussolini, whereby something like half of the fine province of Transylvania is ripped off from Rumania and returned to Hungary, which lost it in the world war, is good only so long as Hitler is head man in Europe. It's length of life depends on whether he wins the battle of Britain.

2. The manner in which Hitler handled this situation is an excellent illustration of the rule which observers generally expect him to impose on his "new Europe" if he does win the war. He took two neutral and sovereign countries, knocked their heads together and said in effect: "Do this fast and no nonsense."

3. Maintenance of "peace" in the Balkans is, as indicated, vital to the axis assault on Britain. But this "peace" cannot give to Hitler the supplies which he so sorely needs from this productive region. The crops of the Danubian basin, one of the world's great granaries, are said by experts to be the poorest in ten years. Further, agricultural production has fallen off heavily because all the Balkan states are standing at arms.

The peace which the nazl chieftain has conjured out of his fist can't alter those facts, though obviously it does ameliorate the situation.

4. King Carol's chances of getting back the territories which he has lost to Russia, Bulgaria and now to Hungary, would seem to rest wholly within himself. The only balm there is in Gilead for him is the maxim that God helps them who help themselves.

He had the backing and friendship of Britain, but lost that. It looks as though the only way he will ever get back his domains is with his own two hands, if the time ever arrives when he can use them.

5. The time hasn't yet arrived for the showdown between Hitler and Stalin which many observers confidently expect. They still speak together, but with guns strapped on their hips.

London, Aug. 31.—(P)—The British armed merchant cruiser Dunvegan Castle has been torpedoed and sunk, the admiralty announced tonight.

THE CAPITAL PARADE

By JOSEPH ALSOP and ROBERT KINTNER

Bob Jackson, a new dealer, for the governorship of New York. "Those are my orders, Jim," Corcoran told Farley. "What are you going to do about them?"

Farley was indignant, and answered, "They're your orders. You carry them out." Farley refused to help the Jackson candidacy and it died aborning. He also objected vigorously to the unsuccessful purge campaign—without result. He knew that his position had changed but he kept his counsel, confident that the president would not seek a third term and that no new dealer could capture the Democratic nomination. After the president had specifically told him that he was not a candidate, Farley quietly started his own campaign. When the European war developed, he correctly judged that the nomination would go to a man experienced in foreign affairs, probably Cordell Hull, and he then laid claim to the vice-presidency.

In private conversations not so long before the Democratic convention Jim Farley insisted that the president be taken at his word, and reiterated that he would not run for a third term. Naturally, when the president revealed to him that he would accept the nomination, Farley was bitter. He made no secret that he thought there was great sentiment against breaking his word. And he carried his feeling to Chicago, to stop an attempt to nominate the president by acclamation early in the convention. On the second night, as the first Roosevelt demonstration was being staged, Senator James P. Byrnes, a White House crony, walked across the platform to Farley and said, "If you'll say the word, withdraw your candidacy, we'll put Roosevelt over tonight." Farley refused. He permitted his name to be placed in nomination by Senator Carter Glass, who denounced in no uncertain terms the third term effort.

Up to the very end of the convention, Farley was practically in open opposition to the president. He was unenthusiastic over the choice of Henry Wallace, a former Republican, for the vice presidency, and according to reliable reports, at one time planned to second the nomination of Jesse Jones. And while Farley accepted the convention's result, he was careful never to retreat from his third-term position.

It can be said with safety that more people will be sorry that Jim Farley is leaving Washington than at any other departure from the administration. He did an excellent job at the post office department, and he maintained a reputation for keeping his word. No doubt he is leaving sadly, but long before the third term was taken with full seriousness, Farley let it be known that, if what he did not expect did happen, he would not be managing the campaign of his friend.

50 HURT AT FAIR BY LADY'S SCREAM

San Francisco, Aug. 31.—(P)—Eleven persons were injured today when a fair-going crowd was panic stricken today at the Golden Gate International exposition by a woman shouting, "Look out, the Tower of the Sun is falling!" Police estimated that about 50 persons were bruised or hurt when a crowd of nearly 700, most women and children, stampeded. Only 11 required hospital treatment. Fog clouds hanging around the sun gave the illusion that the huge tower is leaning.
