

MANY STUDENTS WILL RECEIVE ASSISTANCE FROM NYA THIS YEAR

More than 300,000 secondary school students are being enabled to return to school this month as a result of part-time jobs provided by the National Youth Administration. It was announced today by NYA Administrator Aubrey Williams, in a press release received by Earl T. Rice, NYA district supervisor here.

During the entire school year now starting more than 430,000 different secondary school students will be given part-time work for wages which mean the difference between being able to continue their education and dropping out of school.

School authorities in each community will be responsible for the selection of the students to be employed and for the establishment of suitable types of work activities.

Students are selected on the basis of proved need and demonstrated scholastic ability and earn between $3 and $6 a month. During the last school year the students employed by the National Youth Administration came from families having average annual incomes of $557.
