PEAVY WARNS OF COUNTRY'S PERILS IN ROTARY TALK

An inspiring paper, dealing with importance of safeguarding American democracy, was presented before Medford Rotary club Tuesday by George W. Peavy, former president of Oregon State college and former dean of the school of forestry at that institution.

Peavy told Rotarians at their weekly luncheon meeting at the Hotel Medford, that the individual in totalitarian states is a "voiceless bit of material" whose interests are entirely subordinated to those of the state. He warned his audience that this country must fortify itself to sustain the shock of the revolution in Europe, that is economic and spiritual as well as military.

"Democracy is forced to function in new environments," Peavy said, and discussed in detail the many changes in ways of living today from those of the early days of this nation. He scored the swift pace of today's political set-up. Lack of interest in government on the part of so many and the present-day way of living constitute a menace to this democracy, Peavy claimed.

"The Americanization of youth is vital, for youth is the indispensable material of our future democracy," the educator said.

"Every fifth columnist should be placed in a concentration camp," Peavy insisted, adding that the people of this nation should be willing to submit to certain regulations and even regimentation, but the people should make the regulations and decide the extent of regimentation.

Lloyd Williamson, commander of the local American Legion post, spoke briefly, urging Rotarians to interest themselves in the Legion's sweeping program aimed at curbing subversive activities.

John Day was program chairman of the meeting and introduced the speakers.

STATES ERASE TRADE BRAKES BY COMPACTS

Chicago (U.P.)—Conflicting state regulations, long a deterrent to closer interstate trade and commerce ties, are being slowly eliminated by interstate cooperation commissions active in 44 states according to a report of the Council of State Governments, sponsors of the cooperative movement.

Disputes arising from conflicting regulations governing the movement of motor vehicles, dairy and farm products, and problems in fishing, river sanitation and pollution are those usually dealt with by the interstate commissions.

A recent Indiana-Alabama agreement, providing for reciprocity on private motor carriers, is typical of the numerous transportation accords. Another agreement, between Texas and Louisiana, eliminates the need of dual license plates for residents of one state working in the other.

Interstate liquor problems frequently have been dealt with by the commissions. As the result of a recent conference, the Illinois liquor commission is enforcing a plan to check bootlegging to Indiana, Michigan and Wisconsin whose liquor laws differ from Illinois statutes.

Cooperation of four states is typical of agreements reached over conflicting fishing and hunting statutes. Florida and Georgia have repealed high non-resident license for shrimp boats, while a New York-Vermont agreement provides that New York shall regulate muskrat trapping on Lake Champlain, which lies on the boundary line between the two states.

Compacts designed to eliminate river pollution are among the most important types of accords, it was reported. Kentucky this year joined Illinois, Indiana, Ohio, New York and West Virginia in ratifying the Ohio river sanitation compact.

Other types of disputes, often resolved through interstate commissions deal, with the reciprocal recognition of lawyers, and reciprocal acceptance of legal documents. Boundary disagreements also are often settled through such commissions, among these being agreements between Kansas and Missouri and Indiana and Kentucky.

Minneapolis, Sept. 18.—(P)—"What this country needs," Raymond Moley declared today in a talk sharply critical of President Roosevelt's candidacy for a third term, "is a good, honest, industrious, competent hired hand... who, after a few years, is not likely to think he owns the place."

FORESTRY CHIEF TELLS KIWANIAN COOPERATION NEED

Luncheon meeting of the Kiwanis club was featured Monday by appearance of Karl Janouch, supervisor of Rogue River national forest. In his message to the Kiwanians and their guests, Mr. Janouch emphasized need for cooperation of the general public in Oregon and other timbered states of the northwest with the U. S. forest service in supporting a policy of conservation and economic use of forest resources.

The forest service is not only interested in protection of the national forest areas from fire hazards, but also in development and conservation of forest resources by promotion of a policy of economic use of those resources, Janouch said. He quoted some very interesting production figures taken from local operating records and interpreted them in terms of population and payroll growth and development which were particularly pertinent to Medford and Jackson county.

He also pointed out that the alternative to immediate adoption of a policy of operating on a sustained production yield basis was a very dreary picture, as evidenced by the experience of other communities where devastation of forests had resulted in material loss of local payroll and population.

Legislation sponsored by the U. S. forest service is now pending for presentation to congress April 1, 1941, which will enable the forest service to further aid timber owners and operators in operating on a more profitable economic basis for themselves and in the public interest, Janouch said.

Program Chairman Verne Rolfe also introduced Mrs. Thomas A. Culbertson, Jr., as a special guest of the day. Mrs. Culbertson is the first southern Oregon woman to qualify for a private aviator's license. Mrs. Culbertson is well known locally, having been employed in the Chamber of Commerce office for several years.

Ralph N. Wilson of Talent, charged with driving a lumber truck on the Pacific highway with insufficient clearance was assessed $5 and costs.

MARRIAGE A DAY MONTH AVERAGE

So far this month 18 marriage licenses have been issued in Jackson county, or at the rate of one a day. If the present romantic pace is maintained September will rank with June, July and August, as marrying months. There were 26 licenses issued in June and 36 in July and August.

The present spurt started last April. Before that there was a local lull in matrimony.

More Power, per Gallon

WHEN BETTER AUTOMOBILES ARE BUILT BUICK WILL BUILD THEM

YOU'LL like the size of this trim new Buick SPECIAL for '41—its room, its softer ride, its Permi-firm steering, its fresh smart style and all that.

But what you'll go for is what happens under that broad bonnet—the thrill and the thrust you get from that husky, big, 115-hp. Buick FIREBALL* Eight.

For in each flame-packed cylinder of that silk-smooth power plant a flaring ball of fire is set off with each spark-leap.

Packed to higher compression than ever before, fuel gives up more power and more mileage — power when you need it, economy throughout the whole driving range.

Indeed, so great is the power at your command that at 30 you use only one-eighth of the energy at your disposal. All the rest is there waiting for pick-up, hill-climb and sudden getaway.

Even at 50 you use less than one-quarter of your available power, and at 75 still have nearly half "on call" for emergency use.

More than that, to this engine you can likewise add Compound Carburetion—and step up both power output and your mileage. At 30 you'll get nearly one and one-half more miles per gallon, at 50 almost two, and at 70 an extra mile and one-fifth.

But that's just one side of the story—the facts side. Only one thing will give you the stirring feel of Buick's thrill-packed behavior on the road.

That's a demonstration — and it's yours for the asking. When will you be in to ask for it?
