A. F. L. Shows the Way

THERE is a noticeable distinction between the atti-tude of the A.F.L. and C.I.O., regarding strikes that hold up and impair the country's defense pro-

Repeatedly A.F.L. officials have pledged full support to the defense program, and some have even advocated no walk-outs without a fixed period of preliminary mediation for "the duration."

In marked contrast the C.I.O. leaders have not only sanctioned strike after strike, but have shown no sympathy with, or interest in, the defense program.

Any suggestion that strikes be outlawed until the war is over, or even that a compulsory period of arbitration be imposed before a strike can be called, has been met with loud outcries from the CIO leadership, that the right to strike under any and all conditions is organized labor's "magna charta."

YESTERDAY the following edict was issued from A. F. L. headquarters:

"All affiliates are instructed to take disciplinary action against locals that strike without exhausting first every resource for peaceful mediation."

All credit to the American Federation of Labor! That is precisely the action this paper has urged upon the administration, since the passage of the lendlease bill,-which in our judgment, committed this country to do everything in its power to defeat Hitler.

It is the same action imposed by the Railway Labor Act, which has practically eliminated strikes in American railroad operation.

Predicts War in Pacific

WHAT two generations of Americans feared would one day come about now seems to be almost upon us," says Edgar Snow, expert news analyist from the far east. Snow discusses the possibility of war with Japan in his article, "Showdown in the Pacific" in the current issue of The Saturday Evening Post.

"Today Washington is about ready to tell our aggressive Eastern neighbor that she cannot cut herself any more of the Pacific," says Snow, who has recently returned to the United States after thirteen years in the Orient.

In The Day's News

By Frank Jenkins

WEDNESDAY'S big news is President Roosevelt's speech. In his speech he com-mits the nation to these policies:

 Freedom of the seas.
 DYNAMIC defense against nttack.

FREEDOM of the seas is a catch phrase. The United ways at various times to fit var-ous situations.

Under one definition we sent our navy to the Mediterranean sea to clean out the Barbary pirates by means of shooting war. Under another definition, we passed the neutrality act forbidding American ships to enter war zones. These definitions are diamet-ric opposites.

TUESDAY night, President Roosevelt defined freedom of the present situation, as follows:

"I say the delivery of needed supplies to Britain is IMPERA.

TIVE I say this can be done. It must be done. It WILL be forced to close by a downpour of rain Saturday.

The following sudjections of the property of th

DEFENSE against attack is a fundamental American pol-icy. President Roosevelt pledges DYNAMIC defense. Then he de fines attack: "Attack can begin with ANY BASE which menaces our security, north or south."

Dakar, for instance. Or the Azores or Cape Verde Islands all mentioned in his speech.

"DYNAMIC" defense is a new term. There is no accepted definition of it.

This, however, is a widely accepted military maxim: The best defense is a good OFFENSE. Confederate General Forrest gave this definition of a good offense: "Git thar fustest with the mostest men."

SUPPOSE Hitler seizes (or THREATENS to seize) Dakar or the Azores or Cape Verde islands - or "any base which menaces our security, north or south.

We can assume that "dynamic" defense in such an event would involve "gitting thar fustest with the mostest men."

THAT would involve sending expeditionary forces to foreign

IN the light of these grave and possibly fateful definitions of national policy, we must ALL agree with the president's state-ment that "NO DISPUTES OF ANY SORT must interfere with arms production.

We can't fight without weapons.

AS a dramatic climax to the President's speech, he proclaims a state of "unlimited emergency. What does that mean?

In practice, not much.
A state of unlimited emergency presumably confers upon the president all the powers he would normally be entitled to wield in time of actual war.
In reality, he possessed prac-
