

A 'Different' Memorial Day

Under the flag is fluttering in the last winds of May, and the wild pigeons are in flight above the fir trees. How many and many a daytime, and what store of laughter and might walk through the same day in May with garlands of flowers or banners, will be answered by Dr. Kelly's Personal Health Service.

That is known as "the writin'." And it is. It is also a paragraph from the leading Memorial Day editorial in today's Oregonian and it Ben Lampman isn't the press-poetic muse we will agree to climb up Garfield peak and (some day when the spirit moves) jump into Crater Lake.

Yes, it's "the writin'." and truly inspiring. But somehow on this particular Memorial Day, with troops from Fort Dix embarking for Porto Rico, it impresses us as somewhat too rhetorical and too reminiscent of another and less tragic time.

FLUTTERING with the wild pigeons in "the last winds of May" is all very fine and inspiring, but how about fluttering about in a crazy, flaming circle and then crashing in headlong flight against,—well, say the rock of Gibraltar!

In other words shouldn't we be getting down to earth on this particular Memorial Day and leave the soaring diaphragms back there on the flag-decked platform, for the time being?

At any rate we prefer to the vaunting periods through the Civil war, and as a nurse saw something of the agony and supreme HELL of it.

"Long, long America, Traveling roads all even and peaceful. But now, ah now, to learn from cries of anguish, advancing, grappling with direct fate and recoiling not."

Yes, "advancing, grappling with direct fate and recoiling not" appears to this department more the proper and the fitting note this Memorial Day than (again we quote the Oregonian's lyric bard) —

Personal Health Service

Signed letters pertaining to personal health and hygiene, not to disease diagnosis or treatment, will be answered by Dr. Kelly's Personal Health Service. No reply can be made to queries not conforming to instructions. Owing to the large number of letters received only a few can be answered.

To the best of my knowledge, for not less than a month, if you are suffering from any of the following conditions, you should be using Kelly's Personal Health Service. It is a simple, safe, and effective method of restoring your health to normal.

TO PERPETUATE TROLLEY CAR

Warehouse Point, Conn.—(AP)—A group of citizens with a touch of nostalgia plan to perpetuate an occasional trolley car in the city of New Haven. The plan is to purchase a trolley car from the city of New Haven and to operate it on a track in the city.
