"Keeping Company" Here Sunday

Andy Hardy's favorite girlfriend, Ann Rutherford, has gone and gotten herself married—but it's all in her new picture with John Shelton and Frank Morgan, titled, "Keeping Company," which comes to the Rialto theatre for Sunday and Monday. Virginia Wiedler is also one of the stars in "Keeping Company," a delightful story of a family as human as the one "next door." Morgan and Irene Rich are seen as Miss Rutherford's parents in the new picture, and others in the cast include Gene Lockhart, Virginia Grey and Dan Daitley, Jr.

Stars of Sunday Mystery Hit

Errol Flynn and Brenda Marshall (Mr. and Mrs. "Sea Hawk") are together again in "Footsteps in the Dark," coming to the Craterian Theatre Sunday for three days, with Flynn donning top hat and tails for his first modern screen role in three years. Shows Again

"Mr. Deeds Goes To Town," co-starring Gary Cooper and Jean Arthur, plays as the final hit on the Roxy theatre's "Week of Frank Capra Hits." The picture, which plays tonight and Saturday, is the down-to-earth story of a small-town hick who inherits a million dollars and then goes to New York to spend it. The comedy situations that befall the sudden millionaire are the funniest that have ever been woven into a motion picture, according to the reports from other key towns that have played the popular return Capra comedy.

Air Thriller

All eyes are on the sky as a daring test pilot zooms earthward in the death-defying aviation film, "Power Dive," which heads the special "Decoration day" double bill at the Rialto theatre for today and Saturday. Richard Arlen and Jean Parker are co-starred with Roger Pryor, Cliff Edwards and Helen Mack in the featured cast. "The Singing Hills," starring Gene Autry and Smiley Burnette, plays as the companion feature with "Power Dive." There will be two complete shows this afternoon at the Rialto theatre.
