On Long Trip—Robert Frink, young son of Mr. and Mrs. L. G. Frink of Talent, left by himself today for Dallas, Texas. He is to spend his summer vacation with his uncle, Dr. B. F. Frink, and Mrs. Frink of Corrigan, near Dallas. Robert, who will be 12 next October and will enter the 7th grade in the Talent school next fall, traveled by bus to Tacoma, Wash., where he was to visit his grandparents Mr. and Mrs. Ira West. At Wenatchee, Wash., he planned to stop and see his uncle, Bruce Stoddard, and Mrs. Stoddard. Another stop was to be made at Missoula, Mont., where Robert was to attend the eighth grade graduation of a friend, Charles Chapman. The two boys, Robert and Charles, were then to travel together by train to Dallas. Dr. and Mrs. Frink have planned many interesting trips around Texas for Robert.

HEALTH TALKS By DR. A. R. HEDGES Chiropractic & Naturopathic Physician Phone 3170 128 E. Main St.

WHAT A FALL CAN DO About one year ago a certain local woman fell striking the end of her spine on a step. She realized she was badly jolted at the time but soon forgot the incident. About four weeks later pains began to develop in her right side and leg. The usual remedies were tried and the pain continued. Now after twelve months suffering an X-ray reveals a bad curvature of the lower lumbar vertebrae and severe nerve interference to the nerves leading to the lower abdomen and legs. Time will now be required to correct what might have been a simple matter at the time of the fall. In the meantime much suffering and inability to enjoy life has been experienced. When nerves are involved at the spine it is a Chiropractic problem. When this is better understood much time will be saved in corrections.

Divorced Husband Snatches Infant A tearful mother appealed to city police Saturday night for aid in returning her 17-month-old son to her after the child, according to the story she told police, was snatched from her side in front of a North Front street car and taken away in an automobile by her divorced husband. But, police said, no lawful action could be taken because neither parent had been granted custody of the boy at the time of their divorce in Salem. Chief Clatous McCredie explained that "it is apparently a case of possession being nine points of the law, and there is nothing we can do about it." The mother, police said, filed no complaint against the husband, saying only that she "wanted her child back."

Army Post Talk Gives Central Pt. Boom in Realty The properties available are sent to such inquirers, he added. To Repave Street E. E. Scott, chairman of the city council and acting mayor, Mr. Tex and the council have been looking to the future and making careful plans for any rapid expansion of the city's population and business because of the cantonment. The city officials have been keeping in close touch with the cantonment planners and council meetings have been held every five or six days for several weeks, Mr. Tex disclosed. Special attention has been paid to any necessary enlargement of public utilities, he said, adding that there can be considerable increase in population without taxing existing facilities. The main street is to be re-paved next month. Last May 19 the city council increased prices on city-owned lots to bring them in line with prices put by the county on lots it owned in the city, Mr. Tex said. The prices on residential lots now range from $40 to $150 and on business lots from $200 to $400. The prices had been $15 to $100 for residential lots and $100 to $250 for business lots. On May 22 it was voted that the new prices would be good for one month. The city-owned lots were put back on sale this morning after having been taken off the market on the advice of the cantonment architects who thought the federal government might want to use the land for the erection of FHA houses. Word came Saturday, however, that the city should proceed normally with sale of the lots, Mr. Tex said. Mr. Tex said the city would have sold the downtown park several times. The park is situated between city hall and the city library. It is not for sale, Mr. Tex emphasized. "We want to know that these lots are to be used by the man who buys them and not acquired for speculation," Mr. Tex emphasized, indicating that Central Point is endeavoring to cooperate with the government in averting attempts at speculation and profiteering. Mr. Tex said he had heard rumors but had no official information about the erection of a recreation center by outside interests. The rumors, he added, have placed the recreational center in various parts of the county. The council will hold a regular meeting tonight.

Divorced Husband Snatches Infant A tearful mother appealed to city police Saturday night for aid in returning her 17-month-old son to her after the child, according to the story she told police, was snatched from her side in front of a North Front street car and taken away in an automobile by her divorced husband. But, police said, no lawful action could be taken because neither parent had been granted custody of the boy at the time of their divorce in Salem. Chief Clatous McCredie explained that "it is apparently a case of possession being nine points of the law, and there is nothing we can do about it." The mother, police said, filed no complaint against the husband, saying only that she "wanted her child back."
