

NORWEGIAN SEES BRITISH VICTORY AND NEW EUROPE

Brynjolf Bjorset Gives Interesting Talk Under Voters' League Auspices.

"Hitler is uniting Europe, but it is against himself," said Brynjolf Bjorset, Norwegian refugee, addressing an audience at the high school auditorium last night. Mr. Bjorset, brought here by the Jackson County League of Women Voters, predicted that the war would be over in approximately a year, that England would win and that eventually a new Europe with a central government of some sort would result.

The speaker prefaced his talk with the statement that he "was not trying to drag America into the war," and said he was not connected with any agency, organization or mission to spread propaganda.

Not Invincible
"Germany's army is not invincible," Bjorset declared while relating his experiences during the invasion of Norway. "Such success as Hitler's armies have had is not due to superior training or military technique but to sheer mass force due to overwhelming numbers of planes and mechanized units."

Internal discord, if not actual revolution, is brewing in Germany in the opinion of Bjorset. He repeated experiences of his own tending to prove that there is much dissension between the German army and the Gestapo, and said that an informant, residing in Germany, had sent him a secret message last December to the effect that conditions were ripe for revolution.

Contrary to the general belief in this country, German youth is not well impressed with nazism, Bjorset said, adding that older men who have been associated with Hitler over many years are his most fanatical supporters. But even many of these, including Hess, are beginning to doubt the wisdom of present policies, such as the Russian alliance and counteraction of communism, Bjorset said. The audience showed much interest in his statement that Hess was an idealist who escaped to England in a sincere attempt to bring peace to Europe, and incidentally to save his own life.

Invasion Impracticable
Germany cannot successfully invade England, according to Bjorset. The attempt has been made, more than once, he said and added that England was saved by supplies from this nation and "by certain other aid the exact nature of which is not known generally."

In describing the invasion of Norway, which the speaker declared was extremely unpopular with the common German soldier, Mr. Bjorset said. English attacks were successful as far as they went, but were called off by lack of supplies. "The entire course of the war would have been changed had Norway been prepared to fight, and had the Scandinavian people been united," he stated. The speaker said that the purpose of the invasion was mainly to gain control of the shipping, but that this had not been successful and that 90 per cent of the Norwegian ships were still operating independently.

Quisling A "Nut"
"Quisling is not so much a traitor as he is simply 'nuts'," Bjorset declared in commenting on the German controlled government. He believes that Quisling will shortly be put out of power and that Germany will attempt tighter control of that country.

Elaborating on his statement that Hitler's ideology is losing ground, Bjorset declared that as each country is dominated and an occupation army sent in, these men gradually become imbued with the spirit of democracy through association with the conquered peoples. Entire regiments of men have to be removed from Norway, France and other countries and sent back to Germany because they become "undependable," he said. He believes that these men are now becoming the foundation for counter-nazi feeling in Germany. Germany is not successful in her attempt to nazify the conquered nations, according to the speaker. He related that a free press is gradually returning in Norway, with mimeographed publications being circulated secretly, and that through the medium of the church and the theatre anti-nazi forces were at work.

If education of youth, both in this country and in Europe was along proper medical and psychological lines, it would prevent emotional and mental mass orgies leading to the present world chaos, the Norwegian declared. He believes that such education would grow out of a new order in Europe, with a central government coordinating military, political and economic patterns, and that a new high standard of living could be achieved.

Answering a question, Bjorset stated that the food situation was extremely critical in Belgium, Poland and France and pointed out that while public opinion generally favored sending food to these nations, that no satisfactory plan of doing so without the supplies leaking into Germany had yet been evolved.

Mr. Bjorset was introduced by Mrs. Leonard Carpenter, president of the league. This morning he left Medford in the company of a cousin, George Bjorset, of Cottage Grove, for a short vacation at Diamond Lake.

EUGENE PLEDGES UNITED SUPPORT OF CANTONMENT

City, Business, Labor, Educational and Service Clubs Will Raise $12,500 Fund

Eugene, June 5. — (Spl.) — Eugene's city, business, labor, educational and service club organizations today were on record to support the proposed United States army cantonment for this area with a pledge to raise $12,500 for a general co-ordinating fund.

The money will be administered by Howard Merriam, Eugene Chamber of Commerce military affairs committee appointee as military-civilian coordinator for the cantonment program, and his committee, to be made up of representatives of a score of organized civic, service and social organizations of Lane county.

Camp Would Take 35,000
The proposed cantonment for 35,000 soldiers will be established near Eugene as soon as the army authorities decide that the present emergency warrants expansion — and congress appropriates the funds. This area has already been designated for prior consideration when the expansion program gets under way.

Pledges of co-operation in the army's defense program were made here by representatives of the University of Oregon, Lane county labor, the Willamette Valley Lumbermen's association,

Eugene water board, Eugene Realty board and American Legion.

Strike Bar Proposed
Dr. Donald M. Erb, president of the University of Oregon, has urged a long-range plan to keep at a minimum the social problems which accompany establishment of a cantonment. Ray McInnis of the Eugene building trades council declared local labor groups will be willing and eager to assist United States defense under a wage scale to be set by the department of labor, without strike threats.

H. J. Cox, secretary-manager of the Willamette Valley Lumbermen's association, declared that the lumber industry is ready, capable and willing to supply lumber for the cantonment, regardless of profit considerations.
