INJURED ANGLER RECALLS MISERY WAITING RELIEF

Lying comfortably in Community hospital today after his broken leg had been set, though he was still being protected against pneumonia, Waldo Jack Emerson, 50, of 408 Alice street, thought of the misery he endured as he lay all Sunday night in the woods in a drenching rain and the agony he suffered all the next morning as the minutes and hours ticked off into an eternity while he waited, waited with growing misgiving for help to come.

Mr. Emerson went fishing Sunday with his wife, son, Jack, of Klamath Falls and nephew, Jim Crismon, 10. About 3 p. m. Mr. Emerson fell in jumping from one boulder to another and broke his leg. His son went for help and came across Charles E. Gosha, 33 North Peach street, and Ralph D. Van Cleave, 824 Bennett street, who were fishing together. They went with Jack to the scene of the accident, the south Fork of Rogue river between the Butte Falls-Prospect road and the Copco dam.

On the way, while climbing over a cliff, Gosha was struck by a rattlesnake but the fangs penetrated only his sweatshirt sleeve. Gosha shot the snake's head off with his pistol, washed his sweatshirt out and continued on.

The men made an improvised stretcher, applied first aid splints and started to carry Mr. Emerson out of the woods. It was getting close to midnight when they reached the top of the ridge with still a long distance to go.

So Mr. Emerson was left with his son while the others went on for help. About 3 a. m. they reached the Rogue River national forest ranger station at Union Creek. The forest service immediately dispatched a CCC stretcher crew and the long trek back was begun. Meantime a rain storm had started during the night.

The rescue party reached Mr. Emerson about 11 a. m. yesterday. Because of thick brush it was extremely difficult to get him out of the woods but the arduous task was finally accomplished. At 3:05 p. m. Mr. Emerson was taken into Community hospital.
