REDWOOD RUNNER WOULD TRY AGAIN

Grants Pass, Ore., June 26.—Adam Ziegler, who proved that Indians are better runners than middle-aged white men, blew in to town today from Seattle trying to drum up backing for another marathon between Grants Pass and San Francisco, terminals of the Redwood highway.

Tying Cloud ran the 485 miles (old measure) in 1928 in 20 minutes short of a week, starting a whole series of bunions over the entire country. Ziegler's last attempt was in 1928, when he collapsed near

Eureka, only 300 miles out, blaming excessive heat and forest fire smoke, but not a ration of beer.

Ziegler, then styled the "Ambling Austrian," asked for an up-to-date moniker. His real one is Ziolkowski, but that isn't the one he means. He was born of Polish stock in Austria, he said, and proposed to run under a banner, "The Spirit of Murdered Poland."

He said he was serious about it.
