

HEARTBREAK HONEYMOON

By WATKINS S. WRIGHT

YESTERDAY: Although Luella Pell does not know that before her marriage to Henry she had kissed Luella's husband Henry, she does know that Henry and Marie had been together a few days before. And she does not mind much—she thinks. But when the guests have gone she finds it a little difficult to face Henry alone.

Chapter Nine

Perfect Housewife Type

THE door closed. The three guests were gone. Henry and Luella were alone. "A perfect evening!" said Henry. "You were swell, honey. And what a grand dinner." "I'm glad you liked it," said Luella a bit stiffly. Henry looked at her. "Anything wrong, Luella?" he asked. Luella shook her head, and glanced about the room. "I hope," said Henry, "you don't mind my not mentioning the lunch with Marie."

"No, Henry," Luella hesitated a moment. "Only—well, it's just that I don't want you to feel that you have to meet Marie on the sly."

"Ye gods and little fishes!" Henry cried. "I never thought of such a thing. It's just that it slipped my mind—lunching with Marie, I mean. I ran into her on the street, and that's the way it came about."

"Yes, Henry, I understand," said Luella.

But she didn't understand—not at all.

Had she run into Marie on the street and lunched with her, it would have been the most natural thing in the world to tell Henry about it. It should have been the most natural thing in the world for Henry to tell her about lunching with Marie. But he hadn't told her—and that was that.

She began emptying ash-trays. "I think I'll turn in," Henry said. "I've got a big day before me tomorrow. Night, Luella, honey."

"Good night, Henry," Luella said. "I'll be joining you as soon as I straighten up a little. It's such a depressing sight to get up in the morning and find a lot of cigarette stubs and smelly glasses."

Henry paused in the doorway, watching her.

She was the perfect housewife type, he thought. And he honestly believed that emptying ash-trays was of more importance to Luella than the fact that some day her husband might be out of the land selling business and going places in the world of radio. Funny things—women darned funny.

Presently he turned away. He went out into the bedroom, and got out his pajamas.

As he prepared for bed he thought about the episode out on the extension roof. Marie's lips against his own. Was it possible, he wondered, for a man to love his wife and another woman at one and the same time?

He went on to the bathroom, and got out his pajamas.

Three Autos Hit

Walking Soldier

Tacoma, July 5.—(P)—Struck successively by three automobiles as he attempted to cross the heavily-traveled highway, Private William J. Cunningham, 23, Fort Ord, Calif., was killed last night near the recently built overpass at Fort Lewis. His home was Petaluma, Calif. He was hit first by an automobile driven by Elmer D. Erickson, Seattle, State Patrol Captain James Pryde's office reported.
