HAPPY RELIEF FROM PAINFUL BACKACHE

Many of those aching, nagging, painful backaches people blame on colds or strains are often caused by tired kidneys—and may be relieved when treated in the right way. The kidneys are Nature's chief way of taking excess acids and poisonous waste out of the blood. They help keep people young about 3 years a day. If the 15 miles of kidney tubes and filters don't work well, poisonous waste matter stays in the blood. These poisons may start nagging backaches, rheumatic pains, loss of pep and energy, getting up at night, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headache and dizziness. Frequent or scanty passages with smarting and burning sometimes shows there is something wrong with your kidneys or bladder. Don't wait! Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, used successfully by millions for over 40 years. They give happy relief and will help the 15 miles of kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from your blood. Get Doan's Pills.

Giant Octopus In Battle With Shark In Rialto's Drama

An undersea battle to the death between a giant octopus and a man-eating shark is one of the thrilling highlights of the real-life adventure film, "The Shark Woman," opening a three-day run today at the Rialto theatre.

The ever-present menace of shark-infested pools and lurking jungle perils makes the picture outstanding as the most exciting adventure film brought to the screen in recent years. And, with all due credit to Frank Buck and Martin Johnson, those intrepid adventurers never met with quite so many dangerous situations as are shown in "The Shark Woman." A twenty-foot python crushing the life breath out of a man in full view of the audience; a native, armed with only a knife, fighting a tiger-shark in the treacherous ocean depths; death at every turn—on shipboard, in the sea, on land—all combine to make the picture full of continuous suspense that has never been matched.

"The Shark Woman" derives its title from the native tale of Samarang, where the women must fight side by side with their mates, or perish. When Sai-Yu's lover, Ahmang, young Adonis of Malaysia and hero of all the pearl divers throughout the Indian ocean, loses his knife when attacked by a shark, it is Sai-Yu, the shark woman, who twists her lithe body through the green waters to save Ahmang's life. A new Hopalong Cassidy western hit, "Pirates on Horseback," starring Bill Boyd, is the companion feature on the twin bill.

Lightning rods are said to have an efficiency of 97 per cent when properly installed.

Capra's Latest Hit 'Meet John Doe' on Craterian's Screen

Frank Capra's name has become synonymous with outstanding motion picture entertainment and, at the Craterian theatre where it opened its four day showing yesterday, Capra's latest production, "Meet John Doe," again proves that Hollywood's ace director has lost none of his skill. For "Meet John Doe" is Capra at his best, providing him the opportunity to embellish the film with the little bits of humor and earthy drama that have marked Capra productions since he first flashed on the scene many years ago.

But "Meet John Doe" is not wholly a triumph for Capra. It is also another triumph for Gary Cooper, who portrays John Doe. And, as in "Mr. Deeds," Cooper again proves that, given the right kind of role he can turn in a performance that will stack up with any of 'em. As John Doe, typical American citizen, Cooper is John Doe, or John Doe is Cooper, either way you want to look at it.

Barbara Stanwyck, lover from ever, returns to the Capra fold (did you know it was his "Ladies of Leisure" that first started her to screen fame?) with another bang-up characterization. After several rather mediocre parts, this Stanwyck girl is finally coming into her own again and proving her right to good parts.

In "Meet John Doe," Cooper is a poor, young man fighting for an idea. You like what he represents, so you root for him heart and soul. When he is losing, you suffer; when he is triumphant, you also triumph. And, isn't that what makes the perfect screen show? The perfect story along with the perfect story.
