

SUBMARINE FIRES DAYLIGHT SHOTS AT U.S. DESTROYER

inate" it or try to. He authorized direct quotation of the word eliminate and said it was a good one.

The chief executive said the Greer was attacked under conditions of good daylight and visibility. The navy department had announced torpedoes were launched at her yesterday morning and that the destroyer promptly dropped depth charges. Mr. Roosevelt did not say whether all the attacks occurred within a relatively short time yesterday morning or were spaced at intervals.

He left little doubt that he approved the action of the commander in taking immediate steps against the submarine by dropping powerful depth charges.

Aim Poor
Mr. Roosevelt said it was very fortunate the destroyer was not hit, remarking that it was beyond his power to say why the aim of the submarine was so poor. He would not disclose whether the undersea craft's periscope was above water, declaring he could not talk about that.

"As a landlubber to a sea expert," a reporter inquired, "is it possible for a submarine to make a mistake in broad daylight at torpedo distance?"

Mr. Roosevelt said he would put the explanation this way: "If a submarine had a periscope above the surface there was no excuse for a wrong identification. Most torpedoes, he said, are fired by means of a visual sight."

Query Dismissed
However, almost all naval vessels, including German and Italian, he added, have listening devices and it is possible to fire at a sound. This method is not nearly as accurate.

Mr. Roosevelt dismissed as hypothetical a question on how he could classify the Greer incident as regards "a shooting war."

To an inquiry whether it was possible for a ship to be on the American side of the Atlantic and at the same time in a beligerent zone proclaimed by Germany, the chief executive said this country never had been notified of the establishment of such a zone.

The president himself brought up the attack on the Greer to open his press conference, telling reporters that he knew they would all be asking about it. He had whispered for a moment first with his naval aide, Captain John R. Beardall.

Declaring he had nothing further to say today on the subject, the president dismissed a question whether any grounds for diplomatic action were presented by the shots at the Greer.

Told that one report was that the attack occurred approximately 150 miles west of Iceland, Mr. Roosevelt said he could not discuss approximate locations.

Ronald Coleman in Sunday Show

It's all very well for Anthony (Ronald Coleman) to smile, but neither his wife (Anna Lee) nor her current heart interest, Paul (Reginald Gardner) see anything very funny in his having arrived at the "wrong time" in this scene from "My Life With Caroline," which comes to the Craterian theatre Sunday for a three-day run. With Coleman and Miss Lee, a swell new bundle of talent from Britain, in this gorgeously funny comedy about an indulgent husband and a beautiful wife who can't resist roaming occasionally are Charles Winniger, Gilbert Roland and Hugh O'Connell.

Indian Chief on Double Bill

Western fans are in for a full program of stage and screen entertainment today and Saturday only with Chief White Eagle and his troupe of Indian entertainers on the stage in person and Clarence E. Mulford's "Wide Open Town" on the screen. The famous Chippewa Indian chief and members of his tribe bring special stunts, songs, tribal dances and their own official pictures of the 1940 Pendleton Round-up, titled "Let 'Er Buck."

William Boyd plays Hopalong Cassidy again in the Mulford range adventure which also stars Russell Hayden and Andy Clyde.
