

MADE UP TO KILL

Chapter 37
'Murder is Murder'
SHE didn't know she was giving up her chance, Jeff said. "And it seems this isn't just any old ring. It's been in her family for five generations and it had become a legend. The McDonald who was in possession of it never stepped on the stage without wearing it. And she couldn't break that family tradition. She hadn't known of course that she was going to play, so the ring was in her room, locked up. She knew she'd have time to get it and be back to the theater before the curtain. And she was, but when she did get back, Carol was there."
"But why didn't she tell Tommy why she was going?"
"She knew he wouldn't have let her go. She had to sneak out." For the moment I let my mind drift back over those last five days. "Jeff, it's been horrible."
"Sure. Murder isn't a dancing thing. It isn't a waltz by Strauss. Murder is murder."
Jeff had been staring out the window when a moment later he said, "Halla, are you wondering what has happened to Carol, and what is going to happen to her?"
"Yes, I do think about her. And worry."
"Well, you needn't worry any more. Look."
At the curb a girl in a dark-blue suit was standing beside a man. Her face was tilted up to his, one copper-colored curl escaping from the narrow brimmed hat she wore. There was a look of childlike wonder in her eyes as she listened to him talk. And as Vincent Parker was loving it. We watched him call a cab and help her into it.
Jeff grinned. "Well, Parker found Lee Gray. And he'll have both Carol Blanton and Lee Gray in the same show. For the price of one salary! It'll be terrific!"

NO BUSINESS AS USUAL
More than 75 years ago pioneer Felix Meighen opened a trading post at Forestville, Minn., operating it until his death in 1910. His son, Thomas Meighen, had not the time to devote to the old store, and rather than see a stranger handling it, he locked the doors. For more than 31 years not a single article of merchandise has been sold from the well stocked shelves, though Meighen has often given away items as souvenirs. Some of the goods date back to the Civil War era!
GEORGIA EGGS
Under the Georgia law of 1937 there are no "fresh eggs." Eggs are graded "fancy" and grades A, B, and C.
