Wants Campsite—Rogue River national forest headquarters were in receipt yesterday of a letter from Martin C. Burns, a lieutenant of the U. S. navy on duty at Pearl Harbor, T. H., who said he wanted to lease a campsite and cabin within the forest and close to the river if possible. He wrote that ever since he visited the Rogue River national forest he has had the one desire to obtain such a place. He added that he wanted to have the cabin when he returns to Oregon after the "present emergency." Headquarters said the forest service leases only cabin sites and has no cabins to lease, the leases are renewable from year to year and the lessees must be here to utilize the site.

Transferred—Staff Sgt. Joseph V. Mendrala, member of the U. S. air corps detachment at Medford municipal airport the past five years, will leave tomorrow for Mather field, near Sacramento, Cal., whither he has been transferred. When he leaves for his new post tomorrow he will be accompanied by Mrs. Mendrala and their two young children, Darlene and Victor Stanley. Sgt. Mendrala said he has enjoyed residing in Medford which he described as a "nice, clean city." Sgt. and Mrs. Mendrala have made many friends here. The sergeant is especially well-known in sportsmen's circles, being an ardent fisherman. No replacement for him at the airport here has been designated.

The War Today

(This daily feature, conducted by DeWitt MacKenzie, is being written today by Fred Vander-Schmidt.)

The German reply to President Roosevelt's no-trespass speech bears the unmistakable stamp of Hitler's propaganda ministry. It is worthy of note that the spokesman who delivered it made the point that it was not a "declaration" of the reich's government but a "comment" at the request of correspondents, and thus the Germans show plainly that they do not care to have it recorded historically. No copies of the text were made available.

The Germans reiterate that it is the British blockade and not their own U-boat tactics, which bars freedom of the seas. By all recognized rules of international warfare the blockade is a perfectly legitimate weapon, provided the blockader has the power to make it effective and provided he respects certain limited rights of non-belligerents.

The Germans admit by their own protests that the British blockade is powerful and effective.

Instead of endeavoring to break the British blockade and force her own ships through it Germany has declared a counter-blockade of Britain enforced to a major extent by U-boat warfare. Seldom have these U-boats attacked blockading warcraft; rather their targets have been merchantmen.

Mr. Roosevelt mentioned a

German promise on submarine warfare in connection with the Robin Moor, the United States freighter which was sent to the bottom by a U-boat in the south Atlantic in May, her passengers being put in open boats in which they drifted for weeks.

It is just as well to recall the circumstances and particulars of Germany's promise for it got but a few lines in the papers at the time—Nov. 23, 1936—the public being much intrigued with the events leading up to the abdication of his Majesty Edward VIII of England.

On that day Germany formally adhered to the London protocol for the humanization of submarine warfare. This protocol strictly forbade submarines in time of war to sink a merchant ship until the crew, the passengers and the ship's papers were afforded a safe haven. It was specifically stated that this did not mean lifeboats in the open sea, unless land were near and the weather good. Above all, the true safety of passengers was made the primary consideration.

Labor Camp Services

The Rev. Werner Jessen, pastor of the Zion English Lutheran church, will conduct services at 8 tonight in the assembly tent at the Medford migrant labor camp. Sunday school will be held at 10:30 this morning, Mrs. Thomas Nelson being in charge.

ELKS AND GUESTS EAT ROAST BEEF

A large crowd of Elks and their invited guests gathered at the Elks' picnic grounds Thursday night to enjoy a fine vaudeville show, a bounteous dinner served by "Shy" Morland and the various games provided for the amusement of the multitude. The show, imported, made a big "hit" with the Brothers, as did the delicious roast beef dinner with all the trimmings. The weather was nice and it was unanimous opinion of all those attending that the picnic was on a par, if not better, than any yet held by the local lodge.
