

'When Ladies Meet' Opens Craterian Run Today; Brilliant Cast Featured

ARRAY OF STARS SPARKLE IN NEW SCREEN SUCCESS

Joan Crawford, Herbert Marshall, Robert Taylor, Greer Garson in Cast.

Joan Crawford, Robert Taylor, Greer Garson and Herbert Marshall come to the screen as a notable all-star cast in "When Ladies Meet", opening today at the Craterian Theatre. Based on Rachel Crothers' stage play, one of the big successes of Broadway, it is a lighthearted comedy of tangled loves and bewildered lovers.

Miss Crawford plays a sentimental woman novelist, loved by Taylor. She "falls" for Herbert Marshall, her publisher. The jealous Taylor gets an idea and arranges for Miss Crawford and Miss Garson, who plays Marshall's wife, to meet. Not knowing they are love rivals, the two women become great friends.

Amid hilarious situations, Miss Crawford confides in Miss Garson and tells of her infatuation. Then Marshall enters the scene and fur begins to fly. Miss Garson says that this last flirtation with her friend is too much—much too much. She quits Marshall, who suddenly has discovered that he really loves his own wife. Taylor acts as cupid and brings them together again.

Spring Byington, Rafael Storm and Mona Barrie have the chief supporting roles.

C., and many others, Harmon is said to provide even more thrills on the screen than he ever brought to the playing field.

Hollywood reports that in spite of its line-up of football heroes, "Harmon of Michigan" is not altogether just another football picture. Filmed against a stirring background of collegiate life, the story dramatically
