Jackson County Boys Pledge at Oregon State

That Cow Aimed High and JUMPED

AVIATION began when that cow quit gazing at the moon—and jumped. "Extra!" shouted the papers "Comet Cow Leaps Luna." Radio programs vied to air her first "interview." Today so many Americans fly that—from experience—flying America knows it can become the world's strongest airpower.

Why this confidence? Largely because sea-going Pan American Airways have turned Lindbergh's achievement into routine... Because United Air Lines have made transcontinental flying a shuttle service... Because TWA and American Airlines have de-mystified the stratosphere.

But don't forget that in this crisis many a key airplane and engine factory exists because the commercial airlines were lean-year customers... customers who were forever demanding the best... customers who greeted the finest, newest aircraft by pounding the table for something better... customers who, through rivals, pooled their knowledge to assure better planes for everybody.

This Company knows how many aviation advances have come off because the airlines held their aim higher than the cow jumped. For years, Standard has worked side by side with them—creating better and better aviation fuel. It would be all right with us if an appreciative country asked them to stand up—and take a bow.

Wall St. Report

New York, Sept. 30. — (AP) — Industrials today paced the stock market on a recovery log that put favorites under the finishing wire with gains of fractions to a point or so. Dealings were around 300,000 shares.

Early strength of commodities, based mainly on the overnight hoist of parities for basic crops by the agriculture department, gave a further inflationary tinge to boardroom thinking and touched off bidding for many stocks that stand to benefit from mounting staples.
