(RIBOFLAVIN)

Vitamin G or Riboflavin is a yellow, water-soluble pigment widely distributed in both plant and animal foods. Its function is still not very well understood but it is believed to play a part in the chemical processes of all living cells. In experimental animals a deficiency of riboflavin results in retarded growth, loss of hair, and nutritional cataract. Riboflavin is not easily destroyed during the cooking of foods except when soda or other alkaline substances are present. It dissolves readily in the cooking water which should, therefore, be used.
