

Cougar "Giant Killers" Face Stanford in Coast's Major Fracas

INDIANS FAVORED DESPITE POTENCY OF WSC OFFENSE

Both Teams Weakened By Injuries To Star Players—Beavers Play Bears.

San Francisco, Nov. 14.—(P) Stanford charges into the home stretch in its drive for a second straight Pacific Coast conference championship when it faces Washington State tomorrow in the far west's top football encounter.

The W. S. C. Cougars, the coast's most-improved team in recent games, are the next-to-last hurdle in Stanford's Rose bowl path.

But the Cougars have shown a penchant for knocking over potential champions this season, and may give the T-formation Indians their toughest battle of the year in the contest at Palo Alto. Already W. S. C. has beaten Oregon, which gave Stanford a terrific battle in the season opener, and Oregon State, only team to wallop the Indians.

Armstrong Out
Both teams will be handicapped by injuries to star players, but Stanford has been installed as a heavy favorite. The Indians will be minus the services of speedy Halfback Eric Armstrong, while Washington State may have to forego its famed passing attack because of Billy Sewell's arm injury. The Cougars have done all right without passing, though, winning their last three games by their strong ground game.

If Stanford gets by this one, it has only to dump a banged-up California eleven in the coast's "big game" two weeks away. One victory in their last two games would automatically give the Indians at least a tie for the conference title, and two wins would sew up the Rose bowl bid.

Outstanding

Nancy Merki, 15-year-old Portland, Ore., girl, was nominated by an AAU committee as the year's outstanding woman swimmer in the United States. She fought her way back from an infantile paralysis attack that a few years ago threatened to leave her crippled for life.

at Berkeley. The Beavers, still in the running for the Rose bowl by virtue of their own win over Stanford, will be a strong favorite. The California Bears have had trouble finding a backfield combination since injuries cost them Left Halfbacks Jim Jurkovich and Al Derian, and their offense is not expected to have improved since their loss to Washington last week.

Notre Dame Due to Lose to Northwestern, Barker Says

New York, Nov. 14.—(P) Guessing the week's football slate (and after last week's debacle we do mean guess):

Northwestern-Notre Dame: Two good teams meet in the big game of the schedule. The Irish are tough and their offense, so long as Angelo Bertelli is tossing that ball, is difficult to halt. Northwestern can counter with another sophomore sensation, Otto Graham, but the Wildcats have been unlucky in their major tests this year. Still, maybe their luck will change. A flier on Northwestern.

Stanford-Washington State: Thanks to Bill Sewell, Washington State has been a giant-killer on occasion this season. Having said that, this corner stubbornly casts the customary vote for Stanford.

Duke-North Carolina: This thing almost never comes out as expected. But how are you going to pick against the undefeated Blue Devils in this one? Duke.

Iowa-Minnesota: The Gophers, crippled as they are, figure to have no walkover against improving Iowa but the ballot must be cast for Minnesota.

Missouri-Oklahoma: As tough a choice as any on the schedule. Oklahoma has come far since its trouncing by Texas; Missouri, beaten only by Ohio State, rates as one of the nation's strong teams. Out of the hat, Missouri.

Rice-Texas A. and M.: Prepared for anything. Texas A. and M.

Texas-Texas Christian: Expecting the Longhorns to return to form, Texas.

Columbia-Michigan: Doubting the Lions have enough depth to meet this foe on even terms, Michigan.

Boston College-Tennessee: The Eagles have been impressive in recent weeks. Boston college but not by much.

Duquesne-Mississippi State: Both unbeaten although State has been tied. That long trip back from the west coast won't help Duquesne. In a dense fog, Duquesne.

California-Oregon State: Off the records, Oregon State. Ohio State-Illinois: Can't see any hope for the Illini. Ohio State.

Wisconsin-Purdue: This corner stopped trying to figure Wisconsin after the Badgers' opening game. The coin spins . . . Wisconsin.

Nebraska-Pitt: Both were "up" last week which is of positive help now. Eenie, meenie . . . Pitt.

Cornell-Dartmouth: The nod goes to Cornell.

Harvard-Brown: Spot for a surprise but Harvard's the selection.

Penn-Army: Very even but we'll stick with Penn.

Syracuse-Colgate: Another traditional rivalry in which form means absolutely nothing. Guessing, Syracuse.

Yale-Princeton: Ditto this one. Princeton.

Santa Clara-St. Mary's: Santa Clara rates the edge.

NO POST-SEASON CLASH FOR NAVY

Annapolis, Md., Nov. 14.—(P) Rear-Admiral Russell Willson, Naval academy superintendent, said today that due to the academy's stepped-up schedule it "will not consider any post-season football game" for its once-beaten, once tied eleven.

"Due to the graduation of the first (senior) class in December, and the heavy schedule of the other midshipmen involved in the three-year course, the Naval academy will not consider any post-season football game," Admiral Willson said.

Central Point States Turkey Shoot Sunday

Central Point, Nov. 14.—(Spl.) The Central Point Sportsmen's club will hold a turkey and merchandise shoot at its grounds just north of Central Point next Sunday, starting at 10 a. m. The public is invited, and the shoot will be held, rain or shine.
