News Behind The News

By Paul Mallon

employ, but Hitler stopped it in Germany in circumstances 10 times worse than ours.

The remedies are simple. A courageous fixing of all prices and wages might alone accomplish the result in our situation. This does not mean the loose formula suggested by the administration, or the far feeble job now in the house, would do the job, but an arbitrary over-all law, making violations a criminal offense (for inflation is a crime against the people), might be sufficiently observed to effect the results. Because this is not now even being considered is the main reason a severe inflation is accepted as inevitable.

Rationing could be imposed as an implement of enforcement, if necessary. (Mr. Gaston mentioned this as a possibility for next year.)

Taxation is being offered by the treasury as the main anti-inflation, but outside economists list it third. Utmost revenue is needed to finance the defense effort anyway, so if these taxes serve the secondary purpose of absorbing the excess income of the people, it can thus be justified. But the old fashioned liberty bond would do much of the same job better.

THIS kind of inflation is not difficult to understand. It means a boom that gets out of control and results in a crash. Prices rise so fast they cannot be sustained. The dollar cheapens in value every time a price rises. More dollars are needed to buy food and clothing. Finally, the dollar may buy only 50 cents or less of what it formerly bought. When people come to see this and lose confidence, the crash begins.

No one beats inflation. Only a few speculators, lucky enough to time their operations successfully, have ground for hope. Those who possess anything of value feel the full percentage effect of the loss. The poor man generally loses his job or his home or his automobile (anything he does not own outright). The farmer, least able to pay his debts and taxes, generally loses most.

But there is a tendency among worker and farmer to like the high prices and good living while they last, not looking forward to the time of suffering ahead. Thus an absence of popular pressure on congress and the administration for courageous action is generally noticeable.

THERE are no hedges against inflation. Financial experts tell you to buy things of material worth, like jewels, land, antiques, possibly common stocks. But if you try to sell these in the post-boom depression, you will probably find the market for them suffered as much as anything else.

The best advice I have heard is make yourself most valuable in the work you are doing by increasing your knowledge and skill. That is the best job insurance and the best hedge against inflation you can get.

MY personal prophecy is that enough people will soon be talking about it, to cause the government to do something effective to avoid it.

U. S. foreign trade was larger the first half of 1941 than for the same period in 1931; exports were 36 percent greater and imports 42 percent.
